As England Marched In The Thing We Do Well To Make Railroads Pay
Our Complicated Future

PARIS, JULY 4.—Not everybody reading England's pious protests against Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia, realizes that England once made a similar trip on her own account and most successfully.

In 1867, the Ethiopian ruler King Theodore had locked up the British consul, Captain Cameron, and other Europeans in his fortress at Magdala.
England marched in, carrying dismounted cannon on the backs of elephants over the mountain passes. Britishers know how to treat "natives" and it is said "the tribes on the route were admirably handled and supplies happily paid for, so that not a shot was fired on the 400 miles up to Magdala or on the return."

ETHIOPIA'S FORTRESS, Magdala, was taken. Lord Napier, in command of the British, on reaching the fortress found King Theodore stretched out on his back, dead by a number of hand. He had killed himself in despair, rather than surrender to the British.
This shows the world that it is more serious to imprison an Englishman than it is to shoot an Italian, at least in the estimation of England.
Mussolini does not agree.

FRED JENNY, from Boise City, Okla., beginning his letter, "I am just an old hill billy out here in the dust bowl," adds, "I have been a constant reader of your column for a number of years," then quotes Goethe's saying,
"It is not things we like to do that make life blessed," and asks an opinion about it. If Goethe said that, he was mistaken. It is doing what we LIKE TO DO that makes life worth while. Mr. Jenny says truly, "Ford, Edison and Beethoven were doing the work that they liked to do."
No man does his best unless he does what he likes to do; that is what he can do best. Happy he who finds that kind of a job in life. Why do mothers, with joy, care for their children, hardest job on earth? They like to do it.

RAILROADS tell the interstate commerce commission they would like fares reduced to two and a half cents a mile, instead of two cents. The railroads should have all possible consideration, for they have built up this country, but at two and a half cents a mile they will not compete successfully with automobiles carrying passengers for one quarter of a cent a mile.

Light rolling stock, and high speed, will make the railroad rights of way more valuable than the old railroads ever were. But this can not be accomplished, with cars weighing 200,000 pounds, carrying 4,000 pounds of passenger freight, at slow speed.

TWO PERSONS FACE PERJURY CHARGES

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 4.—(AP)— Two persons associated with the defense of Mrs. Minnie Rose Jenkins, 32, convicted in connection with the poison deaths of three of her children and given life imprisonment, today faced perjury charges.
Gilbert W. Fike, one of her attorneys, was arrested a few hours after a jury late yesterday returned the verdict of conviction, and was charged with an attempt to procure perjury.
He posted a $500 bond and his associate, C. W. Garner, said he would seek an early trial and fight the charges.

The prosecutor's office today disclosed that Mrs. Jessie Clark, 23, sister-in-law of Mrs. Jenkins, had been taken into custody on a perjury charge, and that her bond had been fixed at $500.

Both arrests were based on the appearance of a defense witness, J. D.
Fulbright, 18, of Jacksonville, Ark., who told the court he had agreed to appear, although he knew nothing of the case.

Both Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Clark testified he was present in the Jenkins home on the night the children were fatally stricken.

TWO BIG BILLS SENT TO LECHE FOR SIGNATURE

Senate Adopts Oil Refining

Gas Sales Levy MeasureNOE 'ARRESTED', DIRECTED TO VOTE ON LEGISLATIONUpper Chamber Becomes Verbal Battleground After Detention Of Solon

By Quincy Ewing
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
BATON ROUGE, La., July 4.—(AP)—
The oil refining tax reduction and natural gas sales tax bills were passed and sent to the governor today by the senate in fourth of July meeting after words popped like firecrackers over "arrest" of Senator James A. Noe, critic of Governor Richard W. Leche's administration, by the chamber's sergeant-at-arms.

The passage of the bills concluded the governor's legislative program to accompaniment of furor in which the cry of "dictatorship" was raised for the first time since the death of the late Senator Huey P. Long.

The senate became a verbal battleground after the Leche state administration managed to get every senator but Noe in his seat for passage of the oil refining tax reduction and gas sales tax measures despite the holiday, and order was issued to bring Noe in to make the roll call complete.

On motion of Senator Harvey Peltier of LaFourche, administration leader, Lieutenant-Governor Earl K.
Long ordered Joe Messina, chief bodyguard of the late Senator, Huey
P. Long, to get Noe and seat him.

Noe, who succeeded the late Governor O. K. Allen as governor last January by virtue of his office as lieutenant-governor, and who has differed sharply with Leche over what he has termed pursuance of Senator
Long's policies, was furious.

Lake Leche, one of Long's followers, has disagreed frequently with the state administration, claiming divergence from Long's principles.

He told the senate he had asked Senator Coleman E. Lindsey of Min-nien, administration co-leader in the senate, to request a two days' leave of absence for him so that he might attend the state encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, of which he is a national director.

Noe vehemently asserted he had

CHICAGO, July 4.—(AP)—The season's most intense and widespread heat wave rolled over the midwest today as the "critical period" for a major segment of the nation's food producing areas neared its first week's end.

That period, Secretary Wallace of the agriculture department, has said, will reach its close in about two more weeks and will determine whether the present crop crisis will end as disastrously as the long dry summer of '34.

Temperatures ranging from 100 to 110 degrees were sighted by the central weather bureau forecasting station for virtually the entire drough area from the Rocky mountains eastward to Illinois.

First mercury reading from the territory included a forenoon maximum of 105 at Lincoln, Neb., with no showers expected. Noon temperatures in Iowa hovered around 100. Badly burned North Dakota was cooled—but still fair.

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—(AP)— Twenty years in prison was the possible penalty Harry Thomas Thompson faced today for selling his country's naval secrets to a Japanese agent for a few hundred dollars.

Conviction of the former United States Navy yeoman yesterday in one of the few peacetime espionage trials in the nation's history came less than two weeks after the government made public details of a long-rumored Navy spy case.

It took a federal court jury only five minutes to decide the 30-year-old ex-yeoman was guilty of conspiring to violate the espionage act.

A 20-year prison term is possible for Thompson, who will be sentenced next Monday.

PATHETIC SCENES IN DAKOTA DROUTH BELT

Farm homes are deserted, livestock goes hungry and crops wither away as the torrid summer sun sears North Dakota's drought-stricken areas. At the top is the abandoned home of one farm family east of here and the lack of rain drove out. The horses (center) long have tried to find forage in the grassless pasture, but now they seem to have given up. Below, is an appalling view of dust dunes drifting over a Dakota highway. SANE JULY 4TH OBSERVED HERE

No Major Disturbances And No Serious Injuries Reported

Monroe, West Monroe and Ouachita parish in general apparently celebrated the fourth of July in a sane manner.

Despite the rather wide use of fireworks by children, no injuries were reported.

Although there were five automobile accidents within the city and at least one near here, there were no fatalities.

Both the sheriff's office and the police departments of both Monroe and West Monroe reported there were no major disturbances.

Firemen of the two cities also had an easy day.

The principal public celebrations were four barbecues.

Due to rain during the morning and drizzles during the afternoon and night, most of the residents of Monroe, West Monroe and the parish confined their activities to loitering around their homes or to short automobile rides.

The harder element attended the barbecues, went fishing, indulged in swimming, participated in the big sneak shoot here, hid themselves up or down Ouachita river in various craft or did something of an allied nature.

The only injuries reported occurred

KIDNAPED TEACHER
FREED AND MARRIES

NORWICH, N. Y., July 4.—(AP)— Miss Ora Wager, 25, school teacher who accused two men of kidnaping her from her rooming house in an attempt to prevent her marriage, ge-came the bride today of Melvin Morse, 23, grocery clerk.

Chief of Police Lelan Brooks said the couple were married shortly after noon by the Rev. Scott Clark at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage here.

The chief said the couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall of Norwich. They left on a brief trip to an unannounced destination, Brooks said, but would be back in time for the bride to appear against the two men now held in the Chenango county jail on kidnaping
charges.

Gus Turckett, 36, and Roscoe Coons, both of Middleburgh, pleaded innocent to charges of kidnaping and assault yesterday but their application for bail was denied by County Judge Hubert Brown, who remanded them to jail pending a hearing on Wednesday.

TALMADGE TO RUN FOR UNITED STATES SENATE

MRAE, Ga., July 4.—(AP)—Eugene Talmadge, who is completing his second term as governor, announced here today that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination as United States senator.

He will oppose Senator Richard B.
Russell, Jr., who is campaigning for renomination.

Talmadge announced that Charles D.
Redwine, president of the state senate, had qualified for governor and promised to carry out the Talmadge policies.

Membership Goal Fixed For Roosevelt Nominators Club

A goal of 2,500 to 3,000 members in the Roosevelt Nominators club of Ouachita parish has been fixed by Mayor Arnold Bernstein, chairman of the parish committee which is seeking to raise $3,000 as a contribution to the national Democratic campaign fund. The campaign will end July 15.
Contributors of $1 or more are enrolled in the Roosevelt Nominators club, the membership to become a permanent testimonial of appreciation of the services of Franklin D. Roosevelt as president during his term of office.

A large group of members has already been enrolled, the mayor announced Saturday, the names to be published early this week.

"It is the earnest hope and expectation of the committee," the mayor stated, "that the Roosevelt Nominators club of Ouachita parish will be one of the largest groups of the kind in the entire state. We want from 2,500

STEEL WORKERS' FUSION SOUGHT

Two Giant Rallies Will Be Held To Determine
A. F. L. Fate

WASHINGTON, July 4.—(AP)—Two giant rallies will signal tomorrow the start of what may be an epic campaign to unionize the vast steel industry—a campaign that may determine within the week whether the American Federation of Labor will be welded into one fighting unit or split in two.

Spurred on by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, labor leaders at Homestead, Pa., and Chicago made final plans today for the meetings tomorrow where they will launch the long-awaited drive to bring all steel workers—half a million of them—into one big union.

But the big question of whether the steel industry's determination to retain the open shop will knit all federation unions into a cohesive battle unit will not be determined until next week's meeting of the federation's executive council.

Until the steel industry vowed this week to keep the open shop in the face of Lewis' drive, two factions within the federation had been moving steadily toward a final split that would have left the A. F. of L. with less than two-thirds of its present membership.

At the head of one faction stood Lewis. He and his allies believed all

BOSSIER FARMER FATALLY INJURED

SHREVEPORT, La., July 4.—(AP)— Injuries he suffered early in the morning when struck by a freight train in Plain Dealing proved fatal today to Jimmy Shipp, 28, Bossier parish farmer.

Shipp was brought to a local hospital after receiving first aid treatment in Plain Dealing. He died from loss of blood.

Buddie Thomas, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gush Thomas of Plain Dealing, miraculously escaped death when the ac-

PAYING DEPOSITORS

A large number of depositors who had sums on deposit in the West Monroe State bank of $5,000 or less were paid off last week. The bank closed its doors late in May, but deposits up to $5,000 were insured by the federal government through the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

The bank, when it issued its last report to the state banking commission, showed deposits of approximately half a million dollars and comparatively few depositors had more than $5,000 on deposit.

ROOSEVELT ASKS NATION TO SEEK 'TRUE FREEDOM'

Speaks From Mountain Top
Home Of Thomas
JeffersonPRESIDENT PRESENTED BY SENATOR CARTER GLASSSays Executive Professes Great Love For Common People

MONTICELLO, Va., July 4.—(AP)—
From the mountain top home of Thomas Jefferson, President Roosevelt today summoned America to battle anew for "true freedom" and spoke of the nation's need for leaders of the caliber of the man who wrote the Declaration of Independence.

"There are no limitations," he said in a Fourth of July address, "upon the nation's capacity to obtain and maintain true freedom except the strength of our nation's desire and determination."

"When he concluded, he motored to Richmond and went aboard the yacht Potomac which will bring him back to Washington Monday morning.

Sprinkling eulogies of Jefferson liberally through his Monticello address, the president firmly voiced a confidence that the spirit of Jefferson was not that of "a golden age gone now and never to be repeated in our history."

"Our problems of 1936," he said,
"call as greatly for the continuation of imagination and energy and capacity for responsibility as did the age of Thomas Jefferson and his fellows."

"Democracy needs now, as it found then, men developed to the limit of their capacity, through education, for ultimate responsibility. Emergencies and decisions in our individual and community and national lives are the stuff out of which national character is made.

"Preparation of the mind and the spirit of our people for such emergencies and decisions is the best available insurance for the security and development of our Democratic institutions."

As he spoke, the president stood among a bodyguard of troops in uniforms of colonial days. He gazed from the portico of Monticello, out across the hills and valleys of the mountainous Virginia countryside.
Assembled there with him were Mrs.

TROUBLE FOLLOWS BALLOON RACERS

Army Bag Explodes And

'Became'

DENVER, July 4.—(AP)—Misfortune continued to follow the National Balloon races today, the army bag exploding and the Cleveland entry unable to find enough wind currents to carry it further than 190 miles.

As skies were scanned tonight for the three other entries—the sixth bag, from Detroit, was put out by a wind-ripped tear before it even started—the army pilots talked somewhat light-heartedly of their narrow escape.

The balloon crashed into an eastern Colorado hillside 35 miles south of Denver.

"It was just one of those things," said lean 47-year-old Captain Haynie McComick, recalling that in the 1932 race from Omaha his balloon de-

NOMINATORS CLUBS TAKE IN $13,000

BATON ROUGE, La., July 4.—(AP)—
State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell said today that about $13,000 had been collected for the Roosevelt campaign fund in Louisiana. He added he was pessimistic about the state's full quota of $100,000 being raised at this time.

Mr. Tugwell, in charge of Louisiana contributions, said that while he saw no immediate prospect of the quota being raised, that efforts would continue indefinitely in order to make as good a showing as possible.

"We haven't done as well as expected," he said, "but we hope to devise some schemes whereby additional funds can be obtained."

He said the contribution campaign had been hampered by many legislators and other political leaders being in the capital for the legislative session.

Mr. Tugwell said LaSalle parish was the first to attain its quota, which was $900.

"Caddo and East Carroll parishes have also done well," he asserted.

He said many reports had not been received and tabulated.

Annual State Encampment Enjoys Barbecue
And Dance

BATON ROUGE, La., July 4.—(AP)—
The Veterans of Foreign Wars in annual state encampment here turned their attention to recreation at a barbecue and dance tonight after a parade through the capital's business streets, and transaction of general business.

Forming at the old statehouse late in the afternoon with bugle and drum corps of units over the state, the veterans marched to the new capital in the northern section of the city in a spirited procession.

The veterans adopted resolutions declaring veterans on relief rolls should not be dismissed because of having received bonuses; condemning what were described as radical activities among the nation's youth; urging adequate national defense; recommending a permanent neutrality policy, and urging conscription of wealth as well as man-power in time of war.

The Milton Edwards post of Shreveport won first place in a drum and bugle corps contest, which the Rodney J. Hobbs post of Monroe second, and the John Dibert post of New Orleans third.

Before leaving for Kansas City,
James E. Van Zandt, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars expressed regret that the Republican and Democratic parties did not adopt planks in their platforms providing for the dropping of recognition by the United States of Soviet Russia if what he said was the spreading of communistic propaganda in the United States did not cease.

The veterans will elect officers and name next year's convention city tomorrow.

Deaths yesterday, fourth of 125 throughout the nation late tonight.

Although the death toll was not complete, the figure was considerably under that of 1935, when at least 214 died as America celebrated the anniversary of its birth.

The average fourth of July mortalities from 1925 to 1934 held 233 names.

Most of this year's fatalities occurred on the highways. At 11:39
p. m., Eastern standard time, automobile accidents had claimed 87 lives. Drowning victims in the nation's lakes, rivers and oceans reached a total of 29.

Only two persons died from fireworks injuries as a nationwide
"safe and sane" movement made its effect felt, but thousands were nursing burned faces and blistered fingers from firecracker accidents.

CHATHAM'S CCC CAMP RATES HIGH

One Of Principal Purposes Fire Prevention And Suppression

CCC camp known as "Camp P-69", located ten miles southeast of Chatham, is regarded as one of the best of the kind in the state and has made notable strides in the carrying out of its major purpose, "fire prevention and suppression," according to reports received here.

To date the camp has been responsible for the construction of 50 miles of crosscut pole telephone lines, 80 miles of native pole telephone lines, 25 miles of fire breaks, 160 miles of new truck trails with culverts and bridges, 65 miles of renovated roads (practically rebuilt) with culverts and bridges and 11 cattle guards. Then there has been 30 miles of roadside clearing, 320 miles of trailside fire hazard reduction, together with the surveying of 650 miles of land. A total of 5,000 man days has been devoted to fire fighting and other miscellaneous work has rounded out the program of the camp.

The camp was in full swing on August 1, 1933 and no time has been lost through inclement weather. It was the general belief that the camp was established to relieve unemployment, but the results are regarded as permanent and highly constructive to the community and section of the state.

In most of this area, it was found unnecessary to plant trees for fire had done her part. The presence of this camp has served, it is said, to make the people of the section "forestation minded." They have learned not to burn over wood lands each spring just to be burning something or for the mistaken idea of thereby "enriching" the soil. They have learned that if they let the timber grow they may obtain a job cutting pulpwood for the Kraft mills and add to their regular income from farm crops.

Truck trails were built primarily for fire protection, yet they have injected new life into the community. A farmer who lived six or eight miles from a neighbor across the woods, regarded himself lucky if he saw his neighbor once or twice a year, but now they are able to make frequent visits by running the family car over CCC roads. A farmer may now look after his hogs and cattle out on a free range to better advantage with the aid of the new roads built.

CCC roads have been a great relief for the parish roads or trails now carry 50 per cent of the travel. CCC roads have opened up numerous recreational places for the community.

The CCC boys have become real additions to the section in which the camp is located and a number are said to be planning to marry and settle down in the vicinity.

SWIMMING POOL AT JENA OPENED

JENA, La., July 4.—(Special)—Large crowds have been attending the new Jena swimming pool which has recently been completed. The pool is at the present around five feet deep in the deepest places, but in another week arrangements will be made so that a depth of seven feet will be acquired. The pool is perfectly safe for small children as it is for the older.

Marshal W. H. Bishop, who has been in charge of the construction of the pool, has stated that he is well pleased with the results.

On Tuesday, July 1, Red Cross swimmers will demonstrate life saving methods for the benefit of the public. This is being done in order to have perfect safety at the pool at all times.

Scores of representatives from Ferriday, Jonesville, Sicily Island, Trout, Good Pine and Jena attended a zone meeting of the Methodist Women's Missionary society which was held in the Methodist church in Jena.

Talks by Mrs. H. V. Dunford, of Rochelle, Mrs. B. T. Gallagher, of Trout, Mrs. Inez Raspberry, of Good Pine, and Miss McGee of Jena were the centers of interest.

Both Frances Drake and Francis Lederer, movie stars, credit the late Edward Laurillard, London manager, with their "discovery."

MEASURE PASSED TO ASSIST YOUTH

Bill Permits Police Juries And School Boards To Make Appropriations

A legislative bill, authorizing police juries and school boards of the state to appropriate funds on behalf of the activities of Boy Scouts, Camp Fire girls or other similar organizations, was unanimously adopted at the present session of the legislature, according to word received by Olan Black, scout executive of Ouachita Valley council. Heretofore police juries making contributions to character building organizations have done so as "donations for charitable purposes." The new measure permits such appropriations to be made specifically for "teaching boys and girls the highest type of character building and American citizenship."

The bill originated in the senate, sponsored by Senator D. B. Fleming of Concordia parish, who has been deeply interested in Boy Scout work throughout the Ouachita valley, and in the house by Representative Robert Curry.

The title of the bill, as published in the official journal, reads as follows:

"An act to authorize the police juries and the school boards of the several parishes of the state or either of them under such regulations as they may prescribe to each annually appropriate and use from their respective funds, sums of money not to exceed $2,000, in aid of those organizations now recognized and incorporated by our national congress, such as Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire girls or like organizations, that have established their educational plan that of teaching only the highest type of character building and American citizenship to our boys and girls."

The vote on the measure in the house was 79 yeas and no nays.

BAPTIST CAMP TO OPEN ON TUESDAY

The seventh annual encampment of northeast Louisiana Baptists will be held at Olla starting Tuesday. The encampment will close on July 16. A special program has been arranged. There will be classes in Bible study conducted by Dr. H. E. Petrus and Dr. C. A. Devane will be in charge of the pastors' conference. Classes in Sunday school and W. M. U. work are planned.

Each morning an inspirational address will close the activities and afternoons will be devoted to rest and recreation.

Each evening, Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church, will have charge of religious stereopticon pictures which will prove a new feature of the coming encampment.

Young people from all the Baptist churches of Monroe and West Monroe are planning to attend the camp.

LINDSAY WILL VISIT BIG CHICAGO FURNITURE MART

J. Black Lindsay, manager of the Home Furniture company, left Saturday for the furniture mart at Chicago, where he expects to make large purchases for the fall and winter season. Touring the big Chicago exhibition building, which is closed to the public, buyers will see the latest furniture, lamps, floor coverings, house-furnishings, electrical appliances—everything for the American home—and, in addition, a large array of toys for the coming holiday trade.

Analyzing the trends on the eve of the opening, Mr. Lindsay predicted that almost 70 per cent of all the new patterns introduced by manufacturers will be either modern or 18th century models. The other 30 per cent will be divided between Early American, Colonial and Federal, French, Early English and all the other furniture periods.

DENIES DRIVING CHARGE: CAR 'JUST ROLLED' BACK

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 4.—(P)—A woman defendant, charged with being drunk and driving an automobile backward, put up this defense: "For one thing I can't drive a car; for another, I never touched anything stronger than a soda pop and, besides, the car just rolled down the hill on its own volition."

been "arrested like a criminal" while "among his buddies."

"I can't understand it," he said, "unless the senate is under the iron-clad dictatorship of the governor and the lieutenant-governor."

Lieutenant-Governor Earl K. Long, brother of the late senator, and Senator Harvey G. Peltier, of Thibodaux, administration co-leader, quickly defended the action.

"I want any man in this senate to point to any lot of evidence that I have not been fair to Senator Nee," Long said spiritedly. "I have even permitted Senator Nee at times to speak when he had no right to speak."

Peltier said there was an understanding every one of the 39 senators was to be present when the oil-refining tax reduction bill came up. "I think that Senator Nee should be willing to come here and vote on this important measure," he declared. "Then he can go back and attend the convention."

Nee said it was "not a question of voting on any bill."

Lindsey said that "in fairness" to Nee, the latter had requested him to obtain a leave of absence for him.

"I did not ask for one for him yesterday because I knew the senate had gone on record that everyone would be present."

Several senators said they had waived leaves of absence to be present.

The senate voted down 30 to 8 a motion by Lindsey to grant Nee a day's leave of absence, and then approved 30 to 2 a motion to excuse him after the vote on the tax reducing bill.

The chamber adjourned anyway after passing the bill 38 to 1, with Nee voting against it.

The bill to levy a 1 per cent tax on sales of natural gas was passed 38 to 0 without debate before Nee's arrival.

ascended on high tension electric wires near Sherwood, N. D.

He would not hazard a guess as to the cause of today's explosion, but his associate, Captain John A. Tarro, suggested it might have been due to static electricity, generated by contact of the bag with a tree.

As the wind began to swing the balloon toward the front range of the Rocky mountains, the army crew decided to seek low altitude winds that might sweep them back to the plains area. They let gas escape and descended from 12,000 feet, casting out a 250-foot rope to slow their movement toward the mountains.

Suddenly a hillside loomed before them. Caught in a down draft, the gas bag swung down onto a slope dotted with gnarled scrub cedar trees.

McCormick's story of the succeeding events differed somewhat from earlier reports.

"The basket hit the ground and

HERE'S REAL FARM RELIEF

Here's the answer to that musical query, "How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm?" A radio on a cultivator does it for Herschel Bates, Paragould, Ark., shown here as he enjoyed music and baseball resumes while his mule team moved up and down the corn rows. Bates and radio were set on the tongue of the cultivator and general fixed from front to back, with the cultivator frame serving as the "ground." Arkansawyers for miles around flocked to the farm to admire the innovation.

was dragging us along behind the bag when the explosion came," the pilot said. "We jumped out and ran, because sometimes those explosions throw flames quite a distance."

"When we saw we were safe, we went back and started cutting the ropes to save the basket. But the explosion had used up about all the gas and we didn't have any trouble from then on."

After the takeoff, their craft rose to 12,000 feet but became becalmed near Greeley, 52 miles north of Denver, and as McCormick put it, "we just milled around up there for five hours."

Landing of the Cleveland-Great Lakes balloon, manned by Pilot Milford S. Vanik and Anthony M. Fairbanks, was reported from Akron, Ohio, 190 miles east of Denver. It took off last night at 10:19 p. m. mountain standard time and landed today at 2 p. m.

The three other entries—the Goodyear and two navy balloons—were believed headed toward Nebraska. The Goodyear was reported sighted by M. E. Litch, Sterling, Colo., business man, in northeastern Colorado near the Nebraska border.

DIVES TO DEATH

NEW ORLEANS, July 4.—(AP)—While thousands of New Orleans residents were enjoying the Fourth of July celebration today, a scuba diver died of his accidental death in a 20-foot plunge in the Mississippi river. He was Lourival Ferreira Dos Santos, 30, of Bahia, Brazil, quartermaster of the Brazilian coffee boat Cabedello.

A routine, quiet day was what, in so many words, law enforcement officers allowed. The same sentiments were expressed by the firemen of Monroe and West Monroe.

The Monroe fire department answered two calls during the morning. The firemen were roused from bed at 2:30 a. m. to extinguish an electric sign that had become ignited at 1600 DeSiard street. The fire was caused by a short circuit in the wiring of the sign, which was owned by James Machine works.

At 7:55 a. m. they were called to Ninth and Pine to remove a fire hazard. A gasoline truck had overturned and the firemen were called upon to wash the motor fuel from the street.

The public barbecues took place at Mayor Arnold Bernstein's place on Bayou DeSiard, at the Louisiana Training Institute, at Claiborne school and at Camp Ki-Ro-Li.

The barbecue at the Bernstein place was given by Baskin-Randolph post of the American Legion for the benefit of the Thomas A. Edison Living Memorial fund. Judge Charles Schulze, superintendent, was host to his friends at the training school. The affair at Claiborne school was a testimonial to J. Lloyd Warren, new president of the Ouachita parish police jury. The barbecue at Ki-Ro-Li was a Boy Scout affair.

The big skeet shoot, in which marksmen from four states took part, was held at the shooting grounds of the Monroe Skeet club, sponsor of the event, in the northern section of the city.

The city experienced a cool, damp day. The official maximum temperature was 84 degrees, according to Miss Katie Key, government weather observer. The minimum was 70 degrees. A rain during the morning was followed by drizzles during the afternoon and night. The precipitation during the 24 hours that ended at 7 a. m. was .09 of an inch. Miss Key said. She gave the river gauge as 142 feet.

Fireworks makers said the holiday ended one of their busiest seasons in years. Washington officials said the fireworks business had enjoyed a sensational comeback in anticipation of the independence anniversary. They said American imports of noise makers from China would show a big gain this year over last.

Safety authorities over the nation kept fingers crossed as they hoped for the best and feared the worst from the grand scale renewal of the old time fourth feature. Though "safe and sane" measures were stressed for weeks preceding the holiday in hundreds of communities, officials recalled the dire predictions of safety council and insurance company actuaries with misgivings for the eventual showing of the week-end.

The safety council statistician calculating on the basis of previous records estimated 630 persons would lose their lives—a new high record—on the double holiday. An insurance company expert forecast 450 deaths for the period. Both predictions included highway fatalities, drownings, and other accidental causes.

The White Shirt Crusaders, which he heads, are "American Fascists" and advocate violence when and if necessary to achieve their aims, George W. Christians, saluting above, is said to have admitted. The Crusaders were charged by a Kansas City minister with sending him a threatening letter. The pastor protested to President Roosevelt, declaring he had proof that the Crusaders plotted government overthrow.

Chicago comfortable but a maximum of 96 was predicted for Sunday.

The unseasonably hot wave blanketing the midwest set up a 111 degree top at Norfolk, Neb., Friday.

As the drought flched additional dollars from the pockets of the nation's food producers—their loss has already been estimated at more than a quarter billion dollars—wheat prices in Winnipeg reached a new top for a three day period of heavy trading before receding slightly. The October delivery closed at Winnipeg—only major market open on the holiday—at 86 cents.

While grain statisticians here calculated additional millions of bushels lost by the heat and drought, the WPA, spearhead of relief agencies in the heart of the stricken northwest area embracing the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming and parts of Minnesota, sped plans to private work.

More than 2,000 farmers with no crops to tend will start work on public projects in North Dakota Monday. One farmer in that state summed up the difference between this year's drought and 1934's at a small forage crop moved last month.

A yield of only 134,000,000 bushels of spring wheat was estimated for the country by trade experts here compared with an indicated crop of 236,000,000 bushels a month ago. Eye losses were set at 30,000,000 bushels for the period, barely 67,000,000 bushels. At current prices the drought damage conservatively would exceed $150,000,000 on this basis.

Late reports from the south Texas flood region said the waters were subsiding but that their cost included 26 persons dead and more than $3,500,000 in property and crop losses.

Down in the southwestern sector of the drought range, Navajo at Ganado, Ariz., invoked their ancient "rain making" ritual to bring alleviating showers to parched reservation range lands.

Princess Frederica-Louise-Thyra-Victoria-Margareta-Sophia-Olga-Cecilia-Isabella-Christa, a grand daughter of former Kaiser Wilhelm, only daughter of the house of Brunswick and Lüneburg, and second cousin of the king himself.

Princess Alexandrine Louise, third daughter of Prince Harald, of Denmark, niece of King Christian, and great granddaughter of King Christian IX and Queen Louise of Denmark, who also were the great grandparents of Edward.

Rumors that Princess Alexandrine Louise might march to the altar with King Edward were not new last November, when they brought a vigorous denial from her father, Prince Harald. They have persisted, however.

Harald was one of eight children to divide the estate of the late King Frederik VIII of Denmark and has an annual income of about $15,000.

No dowry could be provided for the 21-year-old Danish princess, it is said, but the house of commons recently granted the king some $2,000,000 a year for royal expenses and $350,000 annually for his queen in the event of marriage.

Wide-browed, with dark eyes, almost raven hair dressed in a simple bob, and just a fleeting hint of a dimple, Alexandrine is reserved and studious with a strong inclination toward the artistic. Her favorite hobby is book-binding.

4TH CELEBRATED IN 4 BARBECUES

Scout officials, enjoyed a barbecue at Camp Ki-Ro-Li Saturday noon, donated by Mr. and Mrs. George Pipes, who acted as hosts. Following a bounteous repast, a baseball game was played between the fathers and the Boy Scouts and was won by the "dads" by the score of 21 to 8.

After that the party adjourned to the pool, where races were in order. Again after the swim was ended, a second game of baseball was played. This time the Boy Scouts defeated their fathers by a score of 13 to 10.

Those not caring for baseball and swimming, played horseshoes and several exciting games resulted. As a finale, more barbecue was eaten, together with watermelon and then the party disbanded, declaring the day's program had been one of the best they had ever attended.

The testimonial barbecue for J. Lloyd Warren, president of the Ouachita parish police jury, was given on the campus of Claiborne school Saturday afternoon. A large number attended and participated in the generous supply of foods prepared for the occasion. The committee in charge of arrangements comprised Ford Hines, Larry Henry and J. A. Daniel.

'AT SCHOOL'

Joe Ramey, advertising and merchandising manager of Monroe Furniture company, left last night for Grand Rapids, Mich., where he will attend a special four-day interior decoration exposition and school to be conducted by Berkey and Gay, manufacturers of fine furniture. The exposition, under the supervision of world-renowned decorators, has been planned as a feature of Grand Rapids' centennial celebration and 118th semi-annual furniture market.

The Elixir Of Life

William S. Mudd, publisher of three live daily newspapers in Alabama and Georgia, and author of "The Old Boat Rocker," a delightfully entertaining and thought-provoking book, makes one of his homely philosophers say, "Tain't no big men left in the country. Them Yankees. Them Yankees ain't got none and we ain't got none. All the big uns has jest died off, I reckon, and yer can't run no country without big uns. Things has been too easy and soft fer a long time, and yer jest can't raise up no big men in a country less'n yer got hard times to raise 'em on."

The big thing that is wrong with us all is that we are seeking ease and comfort for ourselves and are committed to the doctrine of ease and comfort for everyone else.

Character is not developed in ease and comfort. Character is developed under the stress of trouble. It is in the storms of life, it is in the battles of existence that souls learn to be sturdy and grow to be big. A century of ease and comfort would destroy this nation, for there would not be enough big, strong people left in it to keep it going.

What we should endeavor to do is to see to it that men's troubles are not too severe to be endured, not so devastating as to destroy them.

Our main trouble is that we are in what we termed the "coddle" age. There has been the ice age, the stone age, the bronze age, the steel age, etc., but now we are in the "coddle" age in which everybody must be treated with extreme tenderness. As soon as we get through the "coddle" age we shall be ready to start going places again.

There is really no need to fear that we shall coddle ourselves to death. The Almighty thinks too much of us to let us do it. He will put the pressure on us just as hard and just as long as it is necessary to get us up and doing and learning the important lessons this world teaches us for our own good.

"The Old Rocker" helps us get a slant on this same philosophy. It is a clever satire on the economic life of the country. It is brim full of witty Southern colloquialism and pungent philosophies that bring to the surface an inner wealth of sound reasoning on what ails the people of these modern times.

TAXPAYING ACES

Nobody is quite smart enough to be able to figure out with accuracy the amount of taxation paid by the motorist by reason of his ownership of a car, since there are so many hidden items in the account. The National Highway Users conference experts were able to trace, in the fall of 1934, $62.72 a year from the pockets of the typical light car owner into the strong boxes of local, state and federal governments; but this sum covered only the visible and direct taxes. The car buyer, of course, pays the tax bill of the car manufacturer. When he orders repairs he pays the garageman's taxation. Whenever he houses his car it chips in toward the cost of government. And the visible taxes are numerous and heavy enough.

Last year the national gasoline tax bill rose 6.4 per cent over 1934's to $619,000,000 for the use of the states alone. On top of this pile $160,000,000 collected through the one-cent tax laid by Uncle Sam. In some local jurisdictions an additional exaction is made for the benefit of home government. The states obtain through registration fees over $325,000,000. In 32 states there is a property tax on motor vehicles. There are federal taxes on wholesale value of new cars, parts and accessories, tires and tubes, and a penny-a-quart excise on lubricating oil.

Visible and direct taxation takes considerably over one billion dollars a year from the users of the highways, and if the taxes vehicle owners pay at second or third hand could be computed the total would perhaps exceed one and a half billions. Payment of this sum does not prevent tax collectors from going through the motorist's pockets to see if he has anything left for income, realty, personal property and other forms of taxes. Nor does it deprive him of the honor of being given first consideration when money-raisers look around for means of procuring more revenue. You've got to hand it to the motorist as a taxpayer. He has proved that he can take it.

FAVORITE DIVERSION

The National Recreation association has been trying to find out what form of leisure-time activity makes the greatest appeal to the average American. A questionnaire was prepared and sent to 5,000 people of all sorts—housewives, teachers, social workers, truckmen, janitors, clerks, barbers and street cleaners.

These were asked to check on a list of 94 recreations those they preferred and made most use of. Reading newspapers proved the favorite diversion of nearly 4,000.

This revelation of the taste of the majority of people indicates the success of the newspapers in estimating popular interest, and justifies the editorial judgment in providing in the newspaper departments giving information, culture, amusement and entertainment for old and young in every occupational group and social level.

A millionaire who had traveled all over the world, and who had everything that money could purchase, sadly remarked: "I wish I could lie down under a tree." Poor chap!

LITTLE SATISFACTIONS

There are little satisfactions
That a man can never know;
The joy of small accomplishments:
Bright fruit jars in a row,
A bowl of crisp green salad,
A shining kitchen floor,
A kettle rubbed and gleaming,
A bright knocker on the door.

There are certain petty triumphs
That a man can't realize;
The reason for the laughter
In his baby's azure eyes;
The steps that must be taken
To keep that baby well!
A thousand happy secrets
That a woman will not tell!

There are rooms he cannot enter
In his wife's well-ordered mind.
There are little satisfactions
That a man can never find.
They are simple and home-keeping.
He would only think them dull,
And he'd yawn, not realizing
That they make life beautiful.

Convention Disappointments

By BRUCE CATTON

No one can look back at the recent Philadelphia and Cleveland party conventions without feeling that the time is just about ripe for elimination of these stupid, mishandled, wasteful, and utterly boring affairs.

Nothing was done at either convocation that could not have been done just as well in one day by two dozen men in a hotel suite. In neither case was there any contest that had to go to the floor of the convention. In neither case did the great mass of delegates act any part but that of sweating stooges.

There was a great deal of oratory, to be sure—but nine-tenths of it could have been left out to the vast advantage of everyone concerned. The speeches of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Hamilton at Cleveland, and of Governor Lehman and President Roosevelt at Philadelphia, were worth listening to; practically all the others might better have been omitted.

As to the nomination of candidates, there was no contest in either case. There never was the shadow of doubt that Mr. Roosevelt would be renominated; nor was there a competent political writer in America who did not know, before the Cleveland convention was called to order, that Governor Landon was in.

There was just a little less certainty about the platform. The two resolutions committees did debate and wrangle about them, for a time. But in neither case did the delegates as a whole play any useful part. They took what was offered them and swallowed it without stopping to read it—knowing full well that, in the end, the platforms for the summer would be what President Roosevelt and Governor Landon said they were, anyhow.

Add to all this the fact that the conventions were unutterably dreary. Ward heelers and precinct stooges are not inspiring sights, en masse. When they have nothing to do but dance in accord with clearly visible strings manipulated openly by political bosses, what little esthetic value they once may have possessed is lost for good.

And so, to repeat—why have these conventions? Or, if we must have them, why not limit them to one day apiece? Why conduct the profoundly important business of self-government through tiresome and meaningless ceremonies which do not have the virtue of even being dramatic?

It ought to be very easy to turn the nomination of presidential candidates over to the people, direct, through the medium of nation-wide primaries. Candidates could declare themselves in advance, make such declarations of principle as they wished, and submit their names to the voters.

Platforms could be drawn up by small committees—or, indeed, by the nominees themselves, as is, to all intents and purposes, the case now.

We would be spared, then, these long-winded sessions which, as conducted this year, are almost enough to make one lost faith in democracy.

NEW YORK
Day by Day
by O.O. McIntyre

Visitors, who have not been to New York since the depression, find the metropolis a real bargain town. Far cheaper than the old days. One may engage for $5 a room in a deluxe hotel that used to set a fellow back $12. Bedroom, parlor and bath for $2, formerly $15.

About the only exceptions to low prices are the hit plays. They still demand all the traffic will bear. They never learn. But the general scale for the tourist has been sharply downward. The $125 tea room dinner is now 90 cents and in some instances 65.

Then there are the big floor show restaurants where one really sees a good show and eats a fair to middling dinner for $1.50. The 65-cent table d'hôte vin compria has reappeared in Greenwich Village and in its old haunts in the East 30's.

Many bright little cafes in the Broadway zone serve lunch at 35 cents and a really tasty dinner for 65. Most of the big movie houses have scaled prices. Not many are a dollar. The French Casino, one of the commercial amusement wonders, puts on a show that could be sponsored by Ziegfeld with no feeling of shame and serve a crack meal with it at a comparatively small cost.

Dance halls, too, are cheaper than five years ago and night clubs, save for the perennial expy places, are just about half as expensive as they were five years ago.

All sorts of men's clothes and toggeries have been reduced and, of course, the expensive attelers for Midway's frocks are easily 25 per cent less. Dollar shirt and hat shops abound, and from the window displays, look as spiffy, almost, as the expensive stores.

A statistician has shown that $125 will go much farther than $200 before New York and the rest of the world unbemoaned. Automobiles are cheaper than ever, especially in the second hand field. It is possible to pick up almost any make of imported car for a few hundred dollars.

Nobody knows how long it will last with the fummities at Washington but, while it is going on, Manhattan and its pleasures are a good buy.

The Grand Guignol, that gloomy band box theater that made all Paris shudder with its horror skits, has hung up the shutters. Paris has had too much real horror and gloom to be interested these days in imitations.

Neil Vanderbilt reveals some of the lingo of Chinese boat stewards which he picked up on way to the Orient. The ocean is "the black hole"; every storm is a "typhoon"; the Japanese people, "sneaky"; the Chinese, "long-guy talk"; the British "limeys"; and the Americans, "quicke men." Also in inquiring Vanderbilt's luncheon wants one day he archly inquired: "You havee lice?"

Bermuda threatens to be another Newport for New Yorkers. The Vincent Astors' building there touched off the swank invasion. Many other society people have either rented or are erecting mansions. Then, too, there are rumors that King Edward may go to Bermuda for a rest after the rigors of the coronation next year.

The Bowery has a 15-cent manicure parlor. There are four girl operators. A window display card reads: "Nothing adds so much to a gentleman's well being as well kept nails."

Gelett Burgess has taken a stand against what he calls dudsistic diction. He declares most fiction is over decorated with silly adjectives, ruffled sentences, flounced verbs and metaphor. He insists that most figures of speech are merely lies and that literary dudes shirk thinking. No woman writer, he avers, can be trusted with a metaphor nor with the use of the word "literally," which, he says, even the best of them use wrongly.

From a letter post marked Singapore: "On a verandah of the Raffles with a gin sling I heard the conversation of two American women at the next table. Said No. 1 I have been worried for two nights now over a fear I did not put the lawn mower in the garden house. I know it will be all rusted when I return."

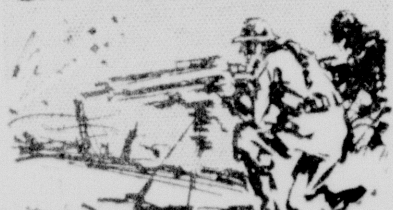

"Travel broadens the mind, fella!"

Edna Purviance, so long Charlie Chaplin's leading lady, now a bit statuesque is living at Manhattan Beach, near Hollywood. Her eerie little cottage, perched like one of those tottering chalets on a Pyrenean crag, overlooks the Pacific and the pounding breakers below roll in with such terrific force they actually shake the maison. So much so, her guests often have slight touches of mal de mer.

STORIES IN STAMPS

CAPTURE OF HILL 140

THE Germans were approaching Arras, when the French command decided to break the enemy lines and force a retreat. On May 9, 1915, the counterattack began, the objective being "Hill 140," five kilometers away, and the brunt of the fighting fell upon a volunteer legion of Bohemian patriots, called the Nazdar.

Almost at the beginning of the fighting, the Nazdar legion lost its commander, then its standard bearer, then some of the best of its men. But in 90 minutes, Hill 140 was captured, and the first great step toward Czechoslovakian independence was taken.

On this battlefield today stands a majestic monument dedicated to the memory of the Czechoslovakian patriots who died there. This monument appears on the stamp shown here, one of two issued in 1935, on the 20th anniversary of this great battle.

Your Baby's Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The most frequent illness of babies is the common cold. Usually this is not serious, but everything possible should be done to prevent secondary bronchitis, pneumonia, or an infected ear.

Children who are well fed and well taken care of, with proper attention to hygiene, are much less likely to catch cold than those who are undernourished and constantly exposed to changes in temperature and crowded conditions.

The child who has plenty of sleep, exercise, fresh air, and sunshine is more likely to resist colds than is one with improper hygiene.

Air in the child's room should be suitably moistened by evaporation of water from the radiator, or by use of a humidifying device.

It is now possible to purchase, at small cost, an instrument which tells the humidity of the room. The average house is about 20, when it should be 45 or 50 in winter.

People with colds should not be permitted to come near babies, particularly those who are delicate, for these catch cold much more easily than do babies.

When babies are sick with colds, they should not be over-dosed with widely advertised cold remedies, since many of these remedies contain drugs which may be dangerous.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Few other developments, if any, stand out in retrospect after the Democratic convention as conspicuously as the decision of a major party to stress in its campaign the distinction between the constitution and the U. S. supreme court.

It is the present intention of Roosevelt and his New Dealers to hammer away on this line through the campaign. The argument will run like this:

The constitution is a great and immortal document and should not be tampered with unless conditions obviously require and public opinion overwhelmingly demands.

But the supreme court is made up of nine human beings, prone to human weaknesses and prejudices, including certain reactionary gentlemen who are neither abreast of the times nor free of the background of special privilege and corporate exploitation from which they rose to the bench through appointment by Republican presidents.

This will be something of a theme song among Democratic orators—unless, you must bear in mind, popular reaction seems unfavorable.

Larger Bench In Prospect

The implication which will be stressed, more or less specifically, is that Roosevelt hopes for vacancies on the court which will allow him to appoint judges of liberalism as well as high standing.

Privately, the president has given serious consideration to the proposal that he ask congress for the power to appoint additional justices to the court, so that a liberal majority might outweigh what is now the conservative majority, consisting of Justices Sutherland, Van Devanter, McReynolds, Butler, Roberts—and sometimes Chief Justice Hughes.

Opinions of the liberal minority of Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo—and sometimes Hughes—will be accepted somewhat as party dogma insofar as these men have held certain New Deal measures to be constitutionally valid and have accused the court's conservatives of deciding issues on a basis of economic prejudices rather than on points of law.

Decide To Take Plunge

Prior to the convention, Roosevelt and his strategists hadn't quite dared make such an argument. The public mind was so unware of the facts and so worshipful of the court that "you couldn't make people understand" that since the constitution was one thing to one justice and another thing to another justice, the court could hardly be considered infallible.

The first official departure from this attitude came in Senator Alben Barkley's keynote speech, through White House instigation. Barkley directly attacked the five justices who killed the New York minimum wage law.

Barkley Sets Pace

"Over against the hosannas of Hoover," Barkley said, "for the tortured interpretation of the constitution, I place the tortured bodies and souls of men who work and pray, of women whose God-given right is not fulfilled in a sweatshop, and of children whom we have sought to restore to the schoolroom and the playground."

Considerable research has been done lately into the backgrounds of the conservative justices, and the logical follow-up of the language of the platform and Roosevelt's acceptance speech is either an immortal declaration for human rights or an attempt to "stir up class hatred," as you prefer.

It will be to show that these justices are "servants of special privilege" rather than friends of the plain people.

Unless planned campaign tactics are reversed, you will be hearing that Justice Dan Devanter is an ex-politician and corporation lawyer, an attorney for the Union Pacific railroad in its land-grabbing days, who later, as a judge, awarded the Union Pacific land along its right-of-way worth millions of dollars—and has major railroad cases before the supreme court.

adults who are accustomed to colds. Large tonsils and adenoids also seem to make children more susceptible to sore throats than are adults. If a child is found to have large, or infected, tonsils and adenoids, these should be removed. It is the universal opinion that children who have had infected tonsils and adenoids removed suffer less frequently with sore throats than they did before.

In preventing colds in children the diet should contain adequate amounts of cod-liver oil, and the amounts of carbohydrates should be lessened.

The clothing should be of medium weight, and should be taken to moderate chilling after perspiration. The sleeping room should be cool.

The child should have a luke-warm or slightly cool sponge bath in the morning, given in a warm room and with the feet in warm water. This bath should be quite short—less than a minute—and should be followed by a brisk rub with a towel. The warm bath should be taken at night.

Use of shots or injections to prevent colds is not yet established as really useful, although many physicians are inclined to believe that the injections help. When adults in homes in which there are small babies develop colds, they may wear gauze masks to cover nose and mouth, and in that way prevent transmission of colds to the babies.

At first sign of a cold, the child should be put to bed, its food lessened, and its bowels regulated. If there is fever, the doctor should be called.

The child should not be permitted to get up until one day after it has recovered from the cold. Then it should be permitted to play in the house, but not to go outdoors until it has been completely recovered. It may then go outside for brief periods until it is free from secondary symptoms, including discharges from the nose.

When babies are sick with colds, they should not be over-dosed with widely advertised cold remedies, since many of these remedies contain drugs which may be dangerous.

FOLK SCHOOLS TO STUDY BUILDING

Architects To Give Instruction In Proper Construction Of Homes

BATON ROUGE, July 4.—(Special) Leading Louisiana architects will instruct folk school classes in the design and construction of homes suitable to Louisiana's conditions and climate, and ranging in prices from $300 to the most costly, Miss Mary Mims, extension sociologist and folk school director, has announced.

"Designs from other sections of the country, no matter how attractive, are frequently impractical in Louisiana," said Miss Mims. "We should cultivate a style of architecture most suitable to this part of the country."

Artistic but inexpensive landscaping with the use of trees, flowers and shrubs native to Louisiana, will be taught by skilled artists at another period of the 14 folk schools to be held in 13 parishes of the state beginning July 1.

Miss Mims told of having seen recently in Louisiana a crude home built of logs. It had tiny, transom-like windows, no porches and few conveniences. She was told that the owner had built it himself, cutting the logs himself from a nearby wood, at a cost of $300—all he had to spend on a home.

"This made me realize," she said, "the importance of teaching our citizens how to build economical, yet practical homes. That is why we are having a special period in home-building at the folk school. If this young man had known the best way to spend his money, he could have had a more modern and convenient home."

"The wrong home in the wrong place," Miss Mims added, "is as bad as the wrong person in the wrong job."

This year our folk schools will teach how to build the right home for the right place."

The school for negroes in DeSoto parish will be held again this year. It is the first folk school for colored people that has ever been held in this country, and probably the only one in the world, Miss Mims said. It will be held in addition to the white folk school in DeSoto.

In connection with the efforts of community workers to secure utilities for every home in the state, electrical home and farm appliances and other modern equipment will be exhibited, at the folk schools. Soon, Miss Mims hopes, every farm home will be equipped with electricity, gas and running water.

The folk school in each parish is planned to meet the needs of that parish, leaders in the folk school explain, and in order to best meet those needs the periods are based, as much as possible, on requests from the people themselves. It is hoped that eventually every folk school class will be the answer to a request. Some of the schools' most interesting courses are answers to specific questions.

Folk school instruction this year will be divided into courses in home-making, business and civic education, agriculture and arts and crafts, with a number of different subjects coming under each course. There will also be a division for children between the ages of one year to 17.

"The folk school," Miss Mims declared, "cements every unit of the community into a harmonious whole. The motto of every group and individual is 'Here I am. Use me.'"

The health unit, the Boy and Girl Scouts, the clergy, the parish agents, the school teachers, the class lecturers, the parish and state librarians, the bus drivers and the students give freely of themselves in making the school a success. The community as a whole is ready to make the effort to meet expenses and provide other necessities, for seldom is anything worthwhile secured without an effort."

Endorsement of shorter hours for employees during the summer has been given by the Monroe Central Trades and Labor council, according to C. C. Burkett, vice-president.

He said the endorsement was in the form of a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the council. The resolution was as follows:

"Whereas, there is on foot a movement for earlier closing hours; and

"Whereas the Monroe Central Trades and Labor council wishes to cooperate with the retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe in shorter hours for their employees;

"Therefore be it resolved, that the Monroe Central Trades and Labor council endorses the shorter hour movement urged by the retail merchants' division of the chamber of commerce."

HOME COURSE IN PIANO PLAYING—LESSON NO. 14

Key of D Sharp Minor relative of F Sharp Major. Musical notation and keyboard diagram showing notes D, E, F#, G, A, B, C, D.

Copyright 1927, by W. Scott Grove, Scranton, Pa. GROVE'S MUSIC SIMPLIFIER is fully protected by copyrights in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, the countries of Continental Europe and their colonies.

The key of D Sharp Minor is here presented as the next step in these home lessons on the piano or organ. This key is the relative of the key of F Sharp Major, presented in the previous lesson.

INSTRUCTION—Place chart upon the keyboard of piano or organ so that the little overlined letter D corresponds to the D of the keyboard and you will find the three fundamental chords indicated for you. (The overlined D, which marks position only, is not to be played.) You will find that in every lesson you have studied the upper major chord is composed of the first, third and fifth tones of the scale, or do, re, mi and sol, with another do in the bass; the second is composed of do, fa and la, with a la in the bass; the third reads sol, ti, re. Here you have every tone in the octave. When you are playing accompaniments each chord you strike should (in general) contain the note of the melody that is sounded with the chord. You can study this out from the chart, but few persons should need more instructions on this point than the ear itself can give. The ear should also tell when to employ the minor chords.

If you will play this chord over and over until you know it perfectly, remembering the letters as well as the keys, you should have no difficulty in playing simple accompaniments to songs sung in F Sharp Major. Patience and practice combined will bring wonderful results in any endeavor, and these two qualities are the firm foundation in the mastery of a musical education.

Every triad in black letter is marked 1, 3, 5. Always read it so, no matter in what vertical order the notes may be written. Note that the small letter D with a dash above it must not be played.

NEXT LESSON—Key of F Flat Major, one flat.

you have dinner that night?" asked Fred Batts, counsel for Edgar, on cross examination.

"I don't remember," Mrs. Edgar replied, tossing her head.

"Wasn't it at the Wonder bar?" "Yes, it was."

"Who else was there?" "Mrs. (S. Arthur) Glockstein, Mr. (William J.) Dunn, Mr. Mallory and Mrs. Landis."

Glockstein is her attorney, Dunn is Mallory's, Mrs. Landis was not further identified.

"Was it at that time that arrangements were made for you to come here and testify?"

"What do you mean?" "I mean, were arrangements made with you then to testify here?"

"I thought it was my duty to come down here and protect my reputation."

"Didn't it occur to you, Miss Crawford, that when you were at the Deauville hotel with Mr. Mallory was the time to have thought of your reputation?"

A thunderclap outside the courtroom and a booming objection from John M. Murrell of Mallory's counsel interrupted simultaneously.

The former Mrs. Edgar, appearing as the court's witness, detailed beatings she said were inflicted by young Edgar, member of a wealthy Michigan sugar family, and said he financed gambling ventures. She said relations between her husband and herself were cool before she ever met Mallory, Monday.

and that three times she had contemplated divorce.

Mrs. Edgar's cross examination will be continued Monday. It was uncertain whether the defense would call Mallory back to the stand to support her denial she kept trust with him. If no additional witnesses testify, the case probably will go to the jury Monday.

Dr. Arthur Karl Greiser, the Nazi president of the Danzig senate, who said he demanded a revision of the free city's status on behalf of the whole German people.

The league's assembly tonight refused Emperor Haile Selassie's request of a loan for Ethiopia and voted to end debates on the Italo-Ethiopian war.

The assembly's action practically assured the lifting of league sanctions from Italy which, last year, the peace body branded an aggressor.

Forty-four members voted to adopt a steering committee resolution to end further debate on the Italo-Ethiopian conflict. Four members abstained from voting. Ethiopia voted "no."

The Assembly silently accepted a suggestion by Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium, president of the body, that it was unnecessary to vote on Ethiopia's resolution against recognition of the Italian annexation of the East African empire.

Galileo Solis of Panama, who recently stated many American nations were dissatisfied with the league, told the assembly its resolution caused "bitter disappointment throughout the world."

Then, by a vote of 23 to 1, the assembly rejected Ethiopia's request for a loan of $50,000,000 "to defend her integrity." Twenty-five members abstained from voting on the question.

the workers in each big industry should be enrolled in one big union.

At the head of the other were William Hutcheson, president of the carpenters, Arthur Wharton, president of the machinists, Daniel J. Tobin, president of the teamsters and truck drivers, and Daniel Tracy, president of the electricians. They believed that workers should be organized by craft. A machinist should belong to the machinists union, whether he worked in an auto repair shop or the steel mills, they said. As the controlling faction in the federation, they had William Green, federation president, as their spokesman.

Lewis and his principal allies—Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Thomas McMahon, president of the textile workers and David Dubinsky, president of the ladies' garment workers—said that the federation had a membership of less than 4,000,000 principally because it had skimmed off the cream of highly skilled workers into craft unions and had ignored the employees in the mass production industries that could not be fitted into any craft organization.

Craft organization, they further maintained, failed to give mass production workers the solidarity and strength they needed.

Meantime, the federation's executive council began to talk of a steel organization drive ordered by the San Francisco convention of 1934. Green sent out pleas to all A. F. of L. unions for funds to finance the drive. The Lewis group turned him down because they intended to do the organizing themselves. The craft leaders said they would not contribute because the conflict within the federation would make any attempt to organize the industry unsuccessful.

Green, nevertheless, said he would proceed with the campaign and would send organizers into the steel centers. About that time, the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers voted to side with the Lewis group. That put an end to talk of an A. F. of L. organization campaign. The amalgamated was to have been the nucleus for A. F. of L. organization.

Craft unionists charged Lewis with promoting "dual unions" and summoned him and his allies to appear before next week's meeting to answer these charges.

Following this came the American Iron and Steel institute's statement that it would protect its workers against "outside agitators" and retain the open shop.

Lewis called this a "declaration of war" and tacked the statement on an otherwise bare wall beside his desk. His steel organization committee then planned the "big push" starting with rallies in Homestead and Chicago tomorrow. He made light of the A. F. of L. council summons, and said he would not appear.

Some labor leaders now say that the craft-controlled council will not push its charges, and that it even may join the task of organizing steel workers. Others, however, express the opinion the wounds of the quarrel within the A. F. of L. are too deep to be healed for many years to come, that Lewis will be expelled from the federation, and that organized labor after this week will be represented by two distinct movements.

DEPUTY SHERIFF NAMED IN MOB ATTACK SUIT

SHREVEPORT, La., July 4.—(P)—Charging that Sheriff Charles Puche, of Evangeline parish, was responsible for his being turned over to a mob which beat him into unconsciousness, shot him and left him for dead in a wooded section, suit for $8,500 damages has been instituted against Puche and three alleged members of the mob by Adam Joseph, whose address was not listed.

The suit was filed in federal district court at Shreveport by R. A. Dowling, New Orleans, attorney for Joseph, and names Fernand David, O'Neil Swardo and Louis Swardo as defendants with Puche.

Joseph charges that on July 2, 1935, while he was temporarily in Evangeline parish, he was arrested at Ville Platte and incarcerated in the parish jail.

About 10 o'clock that same night, he charges, a mob composed of approximately 150 unmasked men went to the jail and demanded of the deputy sheriff in charge that he, Joseph, be surrendered to them. Joseph alleges that the deputy, without any show of resistance, opened the jail doors and surrendered him to the mob.

DISPLAY OF TEARS ENDS 'BALM' TRIAL

CHICAGO, July 4.—(P)—Helen Hayes and Charles MacArthur looked to a European vacation today for relief from their trying roles in a serious drama based on the old eternal triangle.

They were free to return to New York and later cross the Atlantic after the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Carol Frink, first wife of the playwright, against Miss Hayes, his present spouse, had been dismissed in circuit court yesterday.

There were three days of hearings. Hilarity rivaling that of the "Front Page" play MacArthur helped write ruled the second session. The finale closed in a display of tears.

Miss Frink, drama critic for a Chicago newspaper, whose 1930 marriage to MacArthur ended in a 1925 divorce, was on the witness stand for cross-examination. Defense Counsel J. F. Reeve swept his arm toward the defendant and her husband—married in 1928—and asked:

"Do you wish them happiness?" "Yes."

The blond witness' eyes moistened. MacArthur and his actress wife studied the floor. A recess was ordered.

Kathryn Crawford Edgar Gets Day Of Respite From Questioning

MIAMI, Fla., July 4.—(P)—The independence day holiday gave Kathryn Crawford Edgar a respite today from a persistent cross examination designed to break down her assertion that she never committed indiscretions with Lewis E. Mallory, III.

Her divorced husband, James Edgar, Jr., of Detroit, is suing Mallory for $300,000 on charges that he seduced her and alienated her affections at a Miami Beach hotel last March.

"I can't stand this much longer—I can't stand it," the former actress cried after two hours of inquisition yesterday. She had denied that she kept midnight trysts with Mallory in his room, as Edgar and other witnesses charged, or that Mallory ever made love to her.

"Now, when you obtained your divorce in Detroit last week, where did

Two-Day Celebration Held With Banquet At Hotel Virginia

Store managers and salesmen for F. Strauss and Son, Inc., wholesale produce dealers and four affiliated stores located in Little Rock, Ark., Texarkana, Houston and Beaumont, Texas, came to Monroe Saturday for a two-day celebration combining business and pleasure. More than 100 are registered at local hotels in connection with the celebration.

The visitors assembled in the lobby of Hotel Frances Saturday at 2 p.m. and went in a body on a boat ride on the Ouachita river which comprised the afternoon diversion.

A banquet for which 200 places were prepared was held at the Hotel Virginia roof, Saturday at 7:30 p.m., which proved a highly enjoyable occasion.

After the close of the banquet, the diners assembled in Hotel Frances at the Cherokee terrace where they attended the Saturday night dance.

Announcement of the program for Sunday was being kept a surprise last night. All were instructed to report at the general offices of F. Strauss and Son, 229 Walnut street, at 11:30 o'clock in the morning. When they arrive they will be made acquainted with the plans arranged for the final day's celebration.

Jane Weston Thought Romantic Adventures Only Happened In Far-Away Places; Start This Entertaining New Serial Today

CHAPTER I

Jane Weston heard the cold wind and and sleet beating against the panes as she dialed the Central Employment bureau again. She said in a tired monotone, "Miss Weston calling," and glanced at the office clock.

It was 11:30. Every day for 30 days, while she was at this temporary job in the Oceanic magazine office, Jane had called the same number. Regent 3000. Regent 3000. The sing-song refrain buzzed in her mind.

And each time, as now, she had received the same reply. "Sorry. No call for you yet, Miss Weston."

Jane sighed and put down the telephone. She began to type again. It was a relief from thinking about herself.

Or was it? It was maddening, counting off the hours from eight to six. A good, steady job that absorbed her was what Jane wanted. For more than a year she had taken anything—typing, holiday clerking, switchboard work, anything she could get. She couldn't admit defeat, she couldn't go back to that little middlewestern town until she had found what she had been looking for when she set out alone for the city.

Back in Indiana Jane had been a girl of high, keen spirit. She was the middle child in a family of five and had neither the intense self-reliance of the first-born or the home-loving content of the last-born. She wanted to see things and do things that were beyond the ken of her companions in the town. And Jane was practical. When she wanted a thing, she went after it.

In the midst of the final letter in her wire basket, she looked up and saw Dickie Landon grinning at her. Dickie was no more than a glorified office boy, at his first job. He had tried to date her every day for a month.

"Have you ever been to Coney Island in the winter?" Dickie asked. "That's the best time. No crowds, no hot dogs, just the long sweep of the ocean and—"

"And a breeze so cold it'll freeze the marrow in your bones," she replied. "No, thank you. I'll take a cruise to the South Seas on a luxury liner."

She smiled knowingly, for she had just typed a letter to a very wealthy woman who had written the travel editor of the magazine, asking about cruises to the South Seas.

"Aw, come on," Dickie begged. "Just this time. You're no killer for looks! Pompeian room which was luxurious [Jane, but you knock the shine off the others in this building. I ought to know. I've tried to date them all." Jane flushed a little, but she smiled at Dickie's naivete. He was as open and frank in his observations as a child.

Nevertheless she paused in her work long enough to glance at her image in the wall mirror. She had dark brown eyes and a pert, cushioned mouth. Her reddish hair was set in smooth waves away from a high forehead. She had never thought of herself as being especially pretty, but there were plenty of young men who turned around to look after her when she passed on the street.

At this moment there came the faint sound of a ship's horn from the river. Jane glanced quickly toward the window which overlooked the shipping at the piers. Far down she could see the tugboats nosing a giant liner, like a sleek greyhound, out into the water.

Streamers of white paper hung from the stern of the ship, and faintly Jane could hear the noise of the sailing. She could see the black throng on the pier-head, waving handkerchiefs to the people on board the departing cruise ship.

She stood up and tried to distinguish people on board the ship, but they were too far away. The ship steamed down the bay, carrying those people to life, color and gaiety on tropic seas.

"Down to the sea in ships," escaped Jane's lips. Then she sighed.

"Huh! It's one of those cruises to nowhere," Dick Landon scoffed. "I'll bet they don't have any more fun than we had on the Show Boat last summer. We used to go up the river and back all in one night."

But Jane didn't hear him. She picked up a newspaper and turned to the steamship columns. "The S. S. Orinoco sails today at noon with 440 on board. Among the passengers are Prince Raoul d'Espigny; Jack Fields, international tennis star; the Earl of Abingdon; Lola Martinez, the danseuse; and Alberto Grandi, the tenor—"

From somewhere Jane conjured up the sight of a romantic Italian baritone who sat on the deck under the stars and murmured a lot of nonsense about the moonlight and kisses on Lake Como to her—Jane Weston. Or there was a bronzed young man with blond hair and blue eyes on the sun deck of this ship who asked her if she'd like to go for a swim in the

"No," she said. "Have you had your lunch?"

"No."

"Well, you little idiot, go to Kra-

She and Alice had often made the rounds together. Alice wanted a steady job, too, but had found nothing except spare typing jobs to do. There was something disheartening about entering a crowded employment bureau alone, but, together, Jane and Alice sailed into the agencies, one after the other, with chins up and spirits soaring. Employment managers liked to see them come in. The harassed managers always said, "Nothing for you two girls today. But I'm looking out for you. Come again tomorrow."

Someone had left a newspaper at the table and Jane picked it up to look at the "help wanted" section. But, with a sigh, she put it down. It was the same old story, nothing in her line.

But a headline caught her eye. "Sardine Prince Visits America." Below was a picture of a blond, smiling, personable Scandinavian youth, aged 21, who was making his first visit to the United States. He was the son of a wealthy packer of—curiously enough—sardines. He was in this country to make a study of his father's business interests. He was too handsome, Jane thought idly, scanning his features.

The young man was quoted as saying, "I'm crazy about American girls. I might marry one before I go home. Who knows?" And for moments Jane stared at nothing.

She transferred her thoughts to words as her roommate, Alice, sat down at the table, ordering a cup of coffee.

"Where do girls meet men like that?" Jane asked, pointing out the smiling male personage. "Certainly not in an office! There's Jerry, who's worried sick about his own wife and two kids, and Dickie, the office boy, and—"

"Dreaming again!" Alice commented drily. "Why must you pick out a sardine prince to yearn after? What you want is a job!"

When Jane didn't answer, Alice went on pitifully. "You meet men like that on shipboard—taking a cruise to here, there and yonder. They and the fishes don't inhabit dry land."

A cold wind was blowing in from the river and instinctively Jane drew her coat closer about her. She turned up her collar and began to walk. "I've got to save carfare," she confided to herself. "Besides, most of the employment agencies are close together in the downtown business district."

But she soon found the walking difficult in the slush. The icy wind cut her face and her galoshes were sodden and heavy. From a corner drug store, she called her roommate at the walk-up "room with cooking facilities" they shared.

"I'm down town making the rounds of the agencies," Jane said. "I'm through at the office; there isn't any more job. Won't you come down and share my misery this afternoon?"

Alice said, "Have you had your lunch?"

"No."

"Well, you little idiot, go to Kra-

Jane dreamed of strange foreign lands . . . romantic nights under a southern moon . . . star light, the scent of jasmine . . . and a handsome baritone murmuring nonsense—

That's how close we'll ever get to one."

CHAPTER II

Jane came back to earth with a start. "Let's get going," she said. "We have to make the round before dark."

The two girls were systematic in their job hunting. They knew the short-cuts on foot and subway from place to place. They stepped into an elevator and were carried up several floors. As the elevator approached the employment bureau, the steady hum of feminine voices could be heard, rising crescendo. Jane once said it was the sound of tortured souls.

When the elevator doors were open the noise of the waiting room almost knocked one back into the car. Low voices, shrill voices, business-like calls and shrieks of laughter. Hysteria and an occasional joyful squeal. Underneath the uproar—the steady undercurrent of human want and will and ambitions.

It takes a little steel in one, Jane thought, to advance cheerfully into such a picture of hubbub and excitement, but she managed it today. She and Alice stood in line, adding their chit-chat to the volume of noise about them. As they advanced, one applicant after another, toward the harassed manager, their hopes soared until—when at last it came their turn to be spoken to—the answer came, resonant and clear, "Sorry, nothing for you today."

After they had visited 10 agencies Jane's spirit flagged. "It's no use," she said. "We've done this so often it's like a dance routine. And still we never find jobs! What's the use?"

They were standing before a brilliantly lighted show window. It was the office of a steamship company and there was a gorgeous display of color in the advertisements. There were signs which glorified the islands set in tropical seas. Bermuda. The Bahamas. The Isle of Pines. "Spend your winter in Sunny Spain." "The roses bloom in Venezuela in winter." Port au Prince. Gay Havana. "Take a cruise—"

There seemed to be magic in the names and magic in the red and gold and green tints. In the middle of the display was a giant ship model—a white cruise ship. A sign underneath said, "This is your hotel throughout the triangle cruise, sailing tomorrow. Nassau, Bermuda, nine days of glorious romance underneath a tropic moon."

Jane was so absorbed that she did not notice the blond young man who stood at her side, looking at the same display. She said to Alice, "All of us inlanders have our paradise set on islands in the southern seas. I wonder why it is—"

Turning suddenly, she saw the young man. He was smiling and Jane realized—with a shock that sent a deep blush to her cheeks—that he was the handsomest man she had ever seen. Like something that had stepped out of a movie.

Glancing away, she made mental note of his blond hair and blue eyes and a face that was tanned the color of russet brown. Evidently he didn't belong to the work-a-day canyons of the city. His bare head and tanned face were proof of that.

Jane began to talk meaninglessly to Alice about the inclement weather, and took her arm.

But the young man didn't notice. His eyes were on the ship model, taking it all in from bow to stern.

Now Jane had a chance to watch him. He seemed to be making up his mind about something. Suddenly he turned and, without much ado, said, "Swell tub, isn't it?" He smiled and, with that friendly gesture, he was gone. He went up the steps into the steamship office and Jane saw that he limped slightly on one leg.

"Masher!" Alice murmured.

"No, I don't think he was the type at all!" Jane said. "He was too clean looking—"

Jane watched the young man talking to the clerk inside. The latter pulled down a booking chart, indicating a stateroom on the cruise ship, and the young man nodded his head.

Jane sighed. "And he ups and buys a cruise just like that. Do you know, he looked like a man from out of town who was lonely. A city can be the loneliest place in the world. I know. But what is it about a city that keeps people from coming together? If a man speaks to you, just in a friendly sort of way, as he did, he's a masher. If a girl looks interested in a man, she's a pick-up. And we just go on being lonely. Now, on a ship, especially a cruise ship, the people come together—"

"There you go," Alice said, "with your talk about cruise ships again. Snap out of it! It's getting colder every minute."

They moved away from the window when a biting wind caught them in their faces again. "I've had enough discouragement for today," Jane said. "Besides, I have to go back to the office and tell my kind-hearted boss, Jerry, that I didn't find a job."

They parted and Jane made her way back to the office alone. She was physically tired from the trudging in the snow and her shoulders drooped a little as she came in. She sat down at her desk for a moment before she went in to see Jerry.

She was tired, unutterably tired. As she sat there, trying to compose herself for a final stab at typing, that feeling of hysteria and dread came over her again. She picked up the telephone and dialed the telephone employment bureau once more, Regent 3000. She said, "Miss Weston calling—"

"Sorry. Nothing today, Miss Weston."

Jane put the receiver back on the hook and steeled herself. At least she had three weeks' pay coming to her. She could live on that thirty-odd dollars until she found another job. She couldn't go home—

She got up, smoothed back her hair, and went into see the business manager. He looked up and said, "Oh, hello, Miss Weston. I don't think I'll need you for dictation today. But sit down. I've more bad news for you."

Jane's heart leaped to the gorge. She listened, wide-eyed.

Jerry went on, "I feel like a perfect heel, Miss Weston. In one day I have to let you go—don't think I don't know how hard things are—I haven't a job now, either. But, look here, it's just this—"

Again Jane's sympathy went out to him. He was such a harried individual, as he sat there, all hunched up over the desk, his face wan from worry.

"There's no money to pay you off," Jerry went on. "Oh, you'll get it in time, in the course of—liquidation. But there isn't a penny for anybody now. I can't get mine, either. The publisher is tied up."

Jane said, "But I haven't a penny to go on with! And no job. What'll I do?"

It was the second crisis she had faced that day. This news was the final blow.

The business manager winced. But he went on talking. "How would you like to take a cruise?" he asked. "One of those triangular affairs. First to the Bahamas, then to Bermuda and home. It'd give you a chance to take stock—look here, Miss Weston, I couldn't help this—"

Was the man mad with his worries? What was he talking about—a cruise?

"I know it's not a job," Jerry went on, "but you might enjoy it. A breathing spell. You need a rest. This cruise, starting tomorrow, isn't half bad. How would you like to forget all your troubles—and go?"

Jane stared at him without comprehension. "I'm afraid I don't—"

"Here's the way it is. The advertisers in our magazine—steamship companies—have been paying us off in scrip. We have a stack of cruise passages in the safe. Most of them we sell for the face value. A $300 cruise nets us only $300. Some of them we can't sell at all. If you say you want to go on this cruise tomorrow, I'll take the rep and make you the present of a cruise. I'll charge it against the salary we owe you, and all will be square."

Jane's eyes widened with surprise and delight. "You mean—I can sail on that cruise ship tomorrow—to islands in the southern seas—?"

Jerry was a realist. "Life, color and gaiety," he scoffed. "That's the poetry of it. Don't believe everything the advertisers tell you. I write it," he ended cynically.

"Oh—"

Jane stood up and beamed down on him with joy. That's what I'd hoped and dreamed of!" she said, whirling in a delicious circle about him. "I'd love to. I'd adore it."

Jerry felt embarrassed by her exuberant spirits. He said gruffly, "All right. Here are your tickets. A cruise to—nowhere. Now get out of here and let me clear up this jam—the whole business—"

She picked up the tickets and grabbed him for one fervent embrace. Jerry sat back in his chair and eyed her smilingly. "Young lady, this handsome guy doesn't go with the cruise. You'll have to find your romance aboard. Goodbye. Bon voyage and all that!"

Jane went to the door with his last words on her lips. Bon voyage! At this time tomorrow she'd be on the high seas, sailing away—away from all that tensed feeling—to romance in southern seas. What adventures would befall her there?

Suddenly he turned and said, "Swell tub, isn't it?"

3 GUSHERS CLOSE TO NEW ORLEANS

Several Completions Reported During Week By Conservation Department

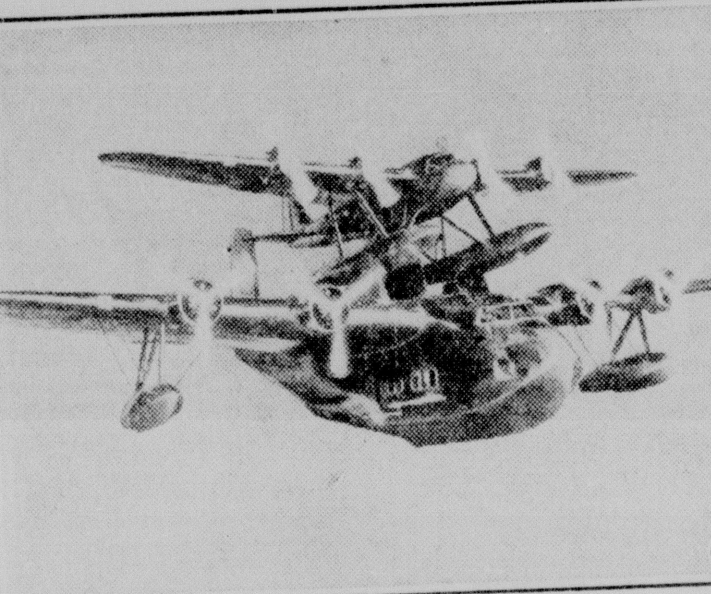

NEW ORLEANS, July 4.—(P)—Completion of three large oil gushers within 65 miles of New Orleans during the week ended Friday was announced here today by the Louisiana state conservation department's minerals division.

One of the new oil wells, produced by the Texas company, was in the LaFite field, Jefferson parish, 20 miles below New Orleans. Flowing an initial daily production of 1,800 barrels, the new producer marked the completion of the fifth large gusher at LaFite by the Texas company within recent months.

At the same time the minerals division announced that a permit for immediate drilling operations in Jefferson parish had been issued to the Triangle Oil Land Development, Inc.

The two oil wells brought into production within close proximity of New Orleans were in Terrebonne parish. There are also being produced by the Texas company. Flowing 1,705 barrels, one is in the Caillou Island

Aviation's first aerial parasites, sketched above, are being created at Rochester, England, for the Imperial Airways in an attempt to surmount difficulties that have blocked long range, non-stop airmail flights. Too heavily loaded to be able to take off under its own power, a 5,000-mile airmail ship is mounted atop a huge flying boat, designed to help lift it into the air. After reaching cruising altitude, the lower unit will return to the airport for duty as a passenger carrier on shorter flights.

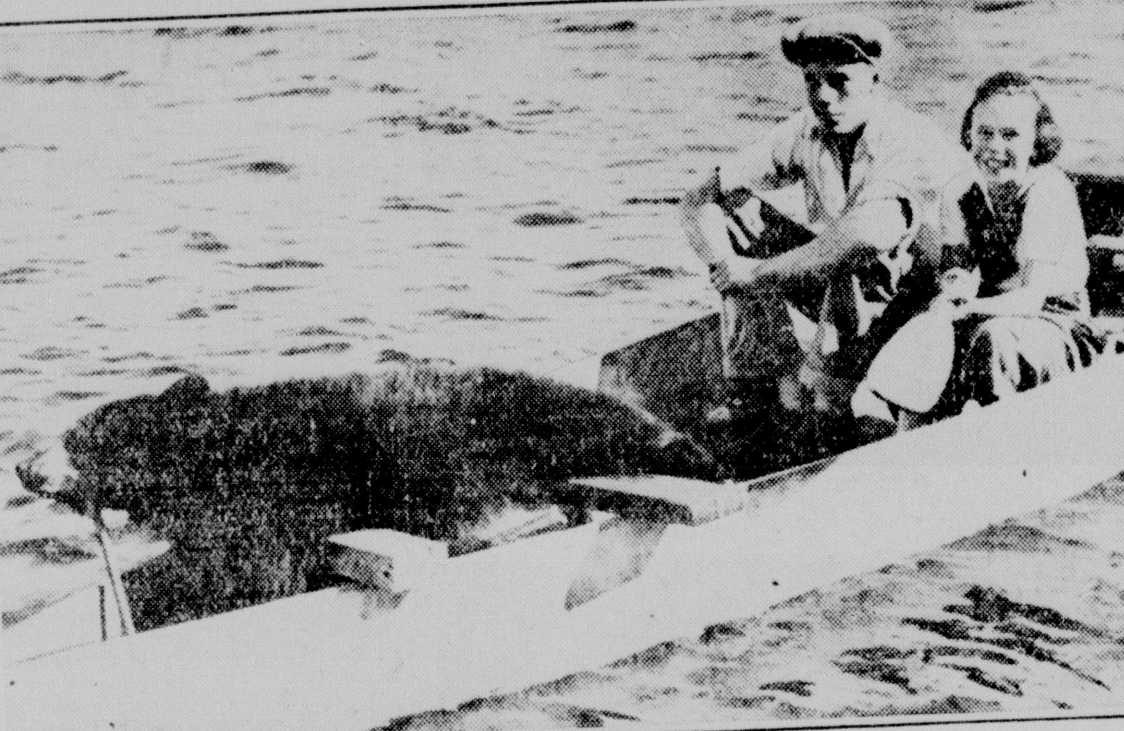

continued to maintain its large number of completions with 11 new gushers. The producing company and the number of barrels of oil each was flowing at the time of completion were: Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company, 840 barrels; Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company, 940 barrels; R. W. Norton, four wells, 660, 216, 360 and 504 barrels, respectively; Standard Oil company of Louisiana and Gulf Refining company, jointly, 2,640 barrels; Standard Oil company of Louisiana, 648 barrels; Tri-State Oil and Gas company, 120 barrels; United Gas Public Service company, 720 and 753 barrels, respectively.

A total of 25 permits for drilling operations were issued by the conservation department during the week ended Thursday. Unless otherwise specified, each company or individual was issued one permit. The permits follow:

Continental Oil company in Acadia parish; Lee Guthrie in Acadia; H. W. Snowden and J. C. Enoch in Ascension parish; J. W. Leonard, Jr., in Bienville parish; Producers Oil & Gas company in Bossier parish; Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company in Caddo parish; Red Iron Drilling company in Caddo; Standard Oil company and Gulf Refining company, jointly, in Caddo; United Gas Public Service company in Caddo.

BEARING HOME BRUIN SLAIN IN MID-LAKE TUSSE

Maybe the bear only wanted a boat ride, but Kenneth Keeley, 15, took no chances when bruin tried to clamber aboard while he was rowing with sister Jean on Dudley bay, Lake Muskoka, near Ontario, Canada. Beating the animal unconscious with an iron bar, he held it under water until drowned, then pulled it aboard with Jean's aid. Here's their proof it's no bear story.

TYPHOID CLINIC TO BE HELD THIS WEEK

Dr. Douglas Williams, Ouachita parish health unit director, announced that a typhoid clinic for white residents of the parish will be held in West Monroe and vicinity starting this week.

The time and places will be as follows: Millsaps school, July 7, from 9 to 10 a. m.; Ransom school, July 7, 10:30 to 11:30 a. m.; Crosley school, July 9, 9 to 11 a. m.; Brown Paper mill, July 10, 1:30 to 3:30 p. m.

Adults and children desiring to take the "shots" will report at the place that is located most conveniently for them at the time stated.

Dr. Williams urges that parents cooperate in the carrying out of the proposed program.

BRITISH SHIPYARDS BUSY BUT WANT MORE ORDERS

LONDON, July 4.—(P)—More than a million tons of merchant shipping were around under construction in shipyards of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, by a survey of the "Shipping World."

In addition 64 naval vessels, including two for Poland, two for Estonia and three for Argentina, are under construction or have been ordered.

Despite this revival, less than half the shipbuilding capacity is being employed and more than a third of the registered shipyard workers are idle.

SECURITY PLAN PROVES POPULAR

Long Payments Can Be Arranged On Cars Through Motor Security Co.

Financing automobiles since 1922 has been the business of the Motor Security Company, Inc., which has an office located at 500 Walnut street. Their 6 per cent plan which has become popular with automobile buyers in Louisiana applies to new cars and payments can be arranged on 6 to 24 month terms. Low monthly payments are made possible by the extended period for repayment, thereby making it easier on the purchaser of a new car.

In connection with the automobile loan business a department is maintained which enables reputable citizens with good credit to borrow money on instant notice on their present car.

TOURISTS SAVE ON STUDEBAKERS

Many Motorists Now Give Serious Consideration To Overdrives

The approach of the touring season has resulted in many motorists giving serious consideration to the overdrives, with which 1936 Studebaker automobiles are equipped, according to John Sherrouse, local Studebaker dealer, whose showrooms are located at 214 North Second street. According to Mr. Sherrouse, motorists who own overdrive-equipped Studebakers may ride three miles and pay for only two when on tour.

"This 'free' ride is all simple and easy to explain," asserts Mr. Sherrouse, "for that is exactly the way Studebaker's overdrive works. Having a car equipped with overdrive is like having another forward speed in the transmission. Besides low, intermediate and high, the car is equipped with the 'overdrive' gear to be used at speeds over forty miles per hour. Moreover, the driver does not have to shift any gears to use the overdrive. Running along at forty miles an hour, the driver merely takes his foot off the accelerator momentarily and the overdrive comes into action. When he later slows down the overdrive automatically goes out of action at speeds under forty miles an hour.

"That," explains Mr. Sherrouse, "is all the driver has to do about overdrive. Engineers have figured out many interesting facts about the economies that the overdrive accomplishes. For example, when a Studebaker is running at 60 miles per hour the engine is turning over at the rate of only 40 miles in gasoline. Recently a group of engineers tested three cars with overdrive. One of them gave 21 miles per gallon of gasoline when running at 30 miles per hour in high gear, but gave only 18.4 miles to the gallon at 40 miles per hour. The same car, using the overdrive at 40 miles per hour, gave 22.8 miles per gallon, which is almost two miles per gallon more than its most efficient operation in the conventional high gear.

"Another car gave only 16.3 miles per hour. That was its most efficient speed in conventional high gear. But with overdrive, it gave 19 miles to the gallon at 40 miles per hour, and 17 miles at 50 miles per hour.

"For the three cars tested the average gain in fuel economy, using the overdrive, was 3.4 miles per gallon at speeds of 40 to 60 miles per hour.

Fuel economy is not the only advantage offered by the overdrive, according to actual tests. The Studebaker engineering department has determined that the engine saves 900 revolutions for every mile traveled when overdrive is used. A mere 100 miles of road distance saves 90,000 revolutions. That means that valves, bearings, spark plugs, timing gears, ignition equipment, generator, pistons, rings and cylinder walls escape from this much unnecessary wear and will, therefore, last that much longer. Mr. Sherrouse has attributed a great deal of the popularity of the 1936 Studebakers to the fact that the overdrive is available on all models this season. He states that many motorists are interested in the overdrive primarily because of the smoother, quieter ride it gives at higher speeds, and only incidentally in the actual economies it accomplishes.

Chrysler President Bids Good-Bye to Sons of Employees

Shown above is K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation, bidding good-bye to the first truckload of boys, sons of Chrysler Motors employees, as they left Detroit June 24 on their 1,800-mile tour of eastern cities and places of historic interest. Dodge trucks carrying 60 boys comprised the first caravan. Four other groups of 60 boys each will take the same tour before school starts next fall. These trips are made possible by Chrysler, inasmuch as the boys' parents are charged only one-third of the actual cost, the company paying the rest.

Operation of Oldsmobile's fleet of "Voice of Safety" cars throughout the country has meant a great deal in educating motorists and pedestrian in the need for caution in congested traffic areas, according to the consensus of opinion of traffic authorities throughout the country.

Practically every one of the country's leading municipalities has operated five or more of the white safety cars provided to police departments in the interest of traffic control and reduction of accidents.

And from heads of police departments and trained traffic men have come enthusiastic reports on the value of the Oldsmobile activity, according to D. E. Ralston, vice president and general sales manager of the company.

"It is an accepted fact among police authorities that by education alone can the best results be obtained in safety work," said Mr. Ralston, "and almost without exception the work being done by the 'Voice of Safety' fleet in the country's areas of greatest traffic congestion."

The safety cars are divided into units of five cars each and already have appeared in such cities as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Boston, St. Louis, and many others of like importance.

In some instances the cars have been utilized at special gatherings, such as the Republican convention in Cleveland, the safety parade in New York, and the Texas centennial exposition at Dallas. Mr. Ralston said. And in some states they have been turned over to state authorities for use in promoting highway safety.

The cars will be in use throughout the east and middle west during the summer months.

CHEVROLET SALES CONTINUE CLIMB

Records That Have Stood Since 1929 Are Being Shattered This Year

Records that have stood ever since 1929, when the automotive industry enjoyed the greatest year in its history, are being surpassed in 1936, according to an analysis of Chevrolet sales records announced by M. E. Coyte, president and general manager.

Although the total sales for the industry as a whole are running behind the peak year record, Mr. Coyte pointed out that in three successive months, March, April and May, Chevrolet's sales have exceeded the 1929 records for those months, and set a new high record for any three months' period in the history of the company.

On the basis of present prospects, Mr. Coyte said, Chevrolet dealers should have 610,000 retail sales to their credit at the end of the five months' peak selling season from March 1 through July 31, as compared with 540,000 units sold in the corresponding period in the company's best previous year, 1929.

Mr. Coyte points out that in 1929 when domestic, Canadian and export sales of American motor cars approximated 5,700,000 units, Chevrolet dealers delivered 100,000 or more units at retail each month for five consecutive months. The greatest number of sales for any month in that period was 115,000 units. This year, at the end of May, Chevrolet had exceeded this old record by a substantial margin for three consecutive months—in March with 134,431 units, in April with 126,119 units, and again in May with 129,516 units.

Mr. Coyte attributed his company's leadership in sales to two factors—the immediate acceptance by the public of the 1936 models following their announcement, and the company's success in achieving a manufacturing volume of 100,000 units a month as early as November, and maintaining this volume during six months out of the last seven. The early public acceptance caused a steady country-wide demand, the production efficiency assured cars to meet the demand, and the two factors combined to result in record-breaking sales.

HELEN JACOBS WINS ALL-ENGLAND NET TITLE

CALIFORNIA GIRL FINALLY ATTAINS DREAM OF YEARS

Defeats Frau Sperling of Germany And Denmark, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 4.—(AP)—Over the same center court Wimbledon court where her greatest hopes of the past lay buried in defeat and heartaches, Helen Jacobs' dream of winning the elusive all-England and tennis championship came true at last today.

Defeated, crushed and disappointed four times in the past as she stood on the very threshold of her goal, the American champion came through at last to win the coveted crown and to extend her tennis reign to two continents by defeating Frau Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling of Germany and Denmark, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5, in the final round. Eighteen thousand spectators, keen to catch the drama of Miss Jacobs' final success, released their pent-up emotions to give her probably the greatest and most wholehearted ovation Wimbledon ever will know as the grueling match ended in victory for the girl who has tried so hard and so often to win England's classic title. For five minutes, the wild throng stood, cheered and applauded as Helen excitedly gathered up her wraps and racquets and trudged happily but wearily from the court.

She was given another tumultuous ovation later when she returned to play for the doubles championship with Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fry against the British duo of Kay Stammers and Freda James. The British pair easily won, 6-2, 6-1, partly because of Miss Jacobs' utter fatigue, but the crowd didn't care. Most of the spectators had seen Helen denied time and again. They saw her win this time and that's all that mattered.

"I'm so happy I finally won—both happy and lucky," she said excitedly as she opened a bundle of telegrams in her dressing room. "Mrs. Sperling played so well, so steadily."

Glen Hardin Wins 400-Meter Hurdles With New Record

WINS AFTER FOUR DEFEATS

Helen Hull Jacobs, United States tennis champion, won the all-England tennis championship yesterday at Wimbledon after being defeated four times in past years at the threshold of victory. This striking picture was taken as the American girl was repelling Mrs. M. Cable of Great Britain in an early round of the tournament.

OTHER LOUISIANA CONTENDERS WIN TRYOUT HONORS

Olympic Contestants Wage Spectacular Battles For Places

PRINCETON, N. J., July 4.—(AP)—Here are the performances of Louisiana's contenders at the combination National Senior A. A. U. championships and Olympic track and field tryouts here today:

Glenn Hardin—Won 400-meter hurdles in new American record time of 51.6 seconds, surpassing the mark he set himself in 1934 at 51.8 seconds.

Billy Brown—Won hop, step and jump with a mark of 49 feet, 2 inches.

Dudley Wilkins—Third in hop, step and jump with 48 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

Jack Torrance—Second in shot-put with heave of 50 feet, 7 1/8 inches.

Eddie Daigle—Fourth in first qualifying heat of 100-meter dash, thus being eliminated.

Billy Roy—Failed to qualify for finals in pole vault, being eliminated at 13 feet, 6 inches.

Al Moreau—Third in 110-meter hurdles, which was won by Forrest Towns in 14.2 seconds.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 4.—(AP)—Touching off a burst of record-smashing exploits that reverberated like the firecrackers set off at intervals in Palmer stadium, America's foremost track and field athletes girded themselves for the Olympic battle by waging a spectacular fight today for national A. A. U. senior championships for the benefit of a crowd of 20,000 holiday enthusiasts.

Paced by such mighty performers as Jesse Owens, Forrest (Spec) Towns, Glenn Hardin and Don Lash, the all-star Olympic tryouts at Princeton produced record-making performances in eight of the 22 events on the title program, witnessed the downfall of eight champions in individual competition, and hoisted a new satellite to the athletic skies in George Varoff, blond pole-vaulter of the San Francisco Olympic club.

Varoff, 22-year-old junior who risked the loss of his job by coming east after qualifying at Los Angeles for the Olympic tryouts, soared to a new world record of 14 feet, 6 1/2 inches. Never before a contender in national title competition, the former San Francisco school boy star beat the highly favored Southern California pair, Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton.

Varoff topped the listed world mark of 14 feet, 4 3/8 inches, set four years ago in the Olympic tryouts at Palo Alto by Southern California's Bill Graber. He also displaced the American mark of 14 feet, 5 1/8 inches, made by Yale's Keith Brown in the intercollegiate A. A. A. championships last year and on file for world approval.

Jesse Owens, redeeming his failures of a year ago at Lincoln in the same meet, accomplished two triumphs. After out-running his Marquette rival, Ralph Metcalfe, by a yard to capture the 100-meter dash in 10.4 seconds, equalling the meet record.

Owens broke through 26 feet, 3 inches to annex his second championship. This leap tied the meet record held by Eulace Peacock, Temple university negro. It also bettered the listed world mark of 26 feet 2 1/8 inches, held by Japan's Chuhei Mambu, but fell short of the Ohio State star's own best mark of 26 feet, 8 1/4 inches, made last year pending acceptance as a world record.

Peacock was kept out of the competition by a leg injury, meanwhile being assured his entry would be accepted for the final Olympic tryouts next week.

Lash, following his record-smashing victory in the 10,000 meter run last evening, captured his second national title and removed any lingering doubt he is America's premier distance runner.

NINE GAMES ON SLATE FOR TECH FOOTBALL TEAM

Six Of Contests, Four At Night, To Be Played At Ruston

RUSTON, La., July 4.—(Special)—A nine-game schedule for the 1936 Louisiana Tech football team was announced here today by Amos W. Ford, chairman of the athletic committee of the college. Six of the games, four at night, will be played here.

Tech will open the season October 2 in Ruston against West Tennessee Teachers with a night game. The concluding game will take place the afternoon of November 26 in Ruston, with Illinois Wesleyan university providing the opposition.

Homecoming is scheduled November 14. The main event of that day will be the game with Millsaps college. It is slated to take place during the afternoon.

The schedule follows:
October 2—West Tennessee Teachers at Ruston (night).
October 10—Southwestern Louisiana institute at Lafayette.
October 16—Mississippi Teachers at Ruston (night).
October 24—Louisiana Normal at Ruston (night).
November 6—University of Tampa at Ruston (night).
November 14—Millsaps at Ruston (homecoming—afternoon).
November 21—Louisiana college at Ruston.
November 25—Illinois Wesleyan university at Ruston.

As a prelude to the homecoming game, a contest has been arranged for the night of November 13 in Ruston between the Centenary freshmen eleven and the Tech freshmen.

Millsaps was the only team to defeat Tech last year.

A hard battle is anticipated with the University of Tampa.

Illinois Wesleyan is a ranking college among the smaller institutions of the middle west.

It also bettered the listed world mark of 26 feet 2 1/8 inches, held by Japan's Chuhei Mambu, but fell short of the Ohio State star's own best mark of 26 feet, 8 1/4 inches, made last year pending acceptance as a world record.

Peacock was kept out of the competition by a leg injury, meanwhile being assured his entry would be accepted for the final Olympic tryouts next week.

Lash, following his record-smashing victory in the 10,000 meter run last evening, captured his second national title and removed any lingering doubt he is America's premier distance runner.

U. S. HOPES

First-Half Championship To Be Decided In Double-Header

The first-half championship in the Ouachita Valley Baseball league will be decided in a doubleheader contest this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock between Brown Paper mill and the Swartz Carbon Blackers at Brown field. These two games are the final ones in a three-game play-off to break a deadlock at the end of the regular first-half season.

Because of the fact that the games will be a championship affair, it is expected that 3,000 to 5,000 fans will be present if the weather is at all favorable. Fans have followed the course of the games in the Ouachita Valley league this season with more than ordinary interest and it is expected that practically all those who have been attending the various games will gather at Brown for the game today, said T. O. Dent, league president.

Brown Paper mill and Swartz were tied at the end of the first half, when each team had played 18 games. League officials decided on a three-game play-off to determine the winner. The first game was played Wednesday at Swartz and Swartz won 4 to 2. This means that in order to win the championship Swartz needs only to win one game, whereas Brown, to win, must take both games.

In case the games should be rained out today, arrangements will be made to have them played either Monday or Tuesday.

The regular schedule of the second half will open Wednesday.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 4.—(AP)—Touching off a burst of record-smashing exploits that reverberated like the firecrackers set off at intervals in Palmer stadium, America's foremost track and field athletes girded themselves for the Olympic battle by waging a spectacular fight today for national A. A. U. senior championships for the benefit of a crowd of 20,000 holiday enthusiasts.

Paced by such mighty performers as Jesse Owens, Forrest (Spec) Towns, Glenn Hardin and Don Lash, the all-star Olympic tryouts at Princeton produced record-making performances in eight of the 22 events on the title program, witnessed the downfall of eight champions in individual competition, and hoisted a new satellite to the athletic skies in George Varoff, blond pole-vaulter of the San Francisco Olympic club.

Varoff, 22-year-old junior who risked the loss of his job by coming east after qualifying at Los Angeles for the Olympic tryouts, soared to a new world record of 14 feet, 6 1/2 inches. Never before a contender in national title competition, the former San Francisco school boy star beat the highly favored Southern California pair, Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton.

Varoff topped the listed world mark of 14 feet, 4 3/8 inches, set four years ago in the Olympic tryouts at Palo Alto by Southern California's Bill Graber. He also displaced the American mark of 14 feet, 5 1/8 inches, made by Yale's Keith Brown in the intercollegiate A. A. A. championships last year and on file for world approval.

Jesse Owens, redeeming his failures of a year ago at Lincoln in the same meet, accomplished two triumphs. After out-running his Marquette rival, Ralph Metcalfe, by a yard to capture the 100-meter dash in 10.4 seconds, equalling the meet record.

Owens broke through 26 feet, 3 inches to annex his second championship. This leap tied the meet record held by Eulace Peacock, Temple university negro. It also bettered the listed world mark of 26 feet 2 1/8 inches, held by Japan's Chuhei Mambu, but fell short of the Ohio State star's own best mark of 26 feet, 8 1/4 inches, made last year pending acceptance as a world record.

McGonagill, Cole, McDade And Bradford Go Into Semi-Finals

By Isaac Chapman
(Morning World Correspondent)

BASTROP, July 4.—(Special)—Elimination of two pre-tournament favorites featured the first round of play in the sixth annual Kraft Paper golf tournament here today. Cramer Haas, Monroe, defending champion of the tournament, was eliminated by Jimmie McGonagill, New Orleans, 7 and 6, and the other upset was the defeat of Edwin McClure, Shreveport, five times state champion by Jimmie Cole, Baton Rouge, by a score of 2 and 1. Both Cole and McGonagill shot beautiful golf today to achieve the upsets.

In the other matches in the championship flight, Ross McDade, Shreveport, won from C. B. Kindred, New Orleans and Ray Bradford, Alexandria, won from A. C. Kuehn, Camden, Ark. In the semi-finals to be played Sunday morning, Cole will meet McDade and Bradford will play McGonagill.

Cramer Haas and Edwin McClure were tied for medalist honors with a 73. They will play off the tie Sunday. A total of 128 golfers qualified for the tournament, which is the largest entry list of any tournament held in the state in recent years. Monroe has the largest representation, with 31 golfers qualified. Bastrop has 25 golfers in the tournament. Shreveport 15, New Orleans 8, West Monroe 7, Baton Rouge 5, and Greenville, Miss. 5.

W. G. "Bill" Sammonson was an even broader smile than usual when he returned from a trip to Boeuf river, where he and some two dozen bass engaged in a tug of war, with Sammonson coming out victorious. "Fighters? I'll say they can fight," Sammonson said. "Boeuf river bass may be small but they put up a struggle in that swift water that is worthy of fish of twice their size."

Small poppin' bugs were used by this sportsman, and yellow and light brown combinations were the ones most favored by strikes. Weevil fly, frog minnow, also came in for a fair share of strikes.

The 24 fish displayed by Sammonson weighed 45 pounds after being out of water nearly two hours. His fishing was done in the early morning hours and the entire string was taken in a stretch of water less than 200 yards long.

Bayou DeSard in hot weather is the place for bass fishermen who are after the big fellows. One morning of the past week five six-pounders were taken by Monroe anglers. The greater number of these were taken on poppin' bugs of yellow or yellow and brown color combinations.

John L. Elmdorf headed the list for this particular day with 19, all of which were of nice size. Elmdorf, as well as several others, invariably get good strings of bass from this bayou.

But casters using weevil lures of brownish tone had excellent luck and several good strings were taken by the dry fly method. Dry flies of the nymph design in brown proved to be something new to bass and several large bass were taken near Idevan, one of which tipped the scales at 19 ounces.

won from Jake Dorman, Monroe, 6 and 5; Ed Fitzpatrick, Monroe, won from Billy Morris, Bastrop, 2 up; M. G. Merkin, Monroe, won from Bill Potts Clark, by default.

Thirteenth flight: B. Sholars, Monroe, won from H. B. Cannon, Monroe, 6 and 5; B. Gibson, Bastrop, won from Sam Humphries, West Monroe, 8 and 7; James Orr, Bastrop, and George Smith, Monroe, drew byes.

Pairings for the semi-annual round Sunday morning and time of play is as follows:

Championship, 8:30 a.m.: Cole vs. McDade; Bradford vs. McGonagill; championship consolation, 8:20 a.m.: Edwin McClure vs. Kindred; Kuehn vs. Cramer Haas.

First flight, 8:15 a.m.: Halback vs. Kittleman; Shafro vs. Liddell; first flight consolation, 8:10 a.m.: Lofton vs. Vann; Hulteen vs. J. B. Tisdale, Jr.

Second flight, 8:05 a.m.: Ben Downing, Jr. vs. Ward; Harberson vs. Beasley; second flight consolation, 8:00 a.m.: Larcade vs. Gladney; W. Ward, Sr. vs. Dr. Brulte.

Third flight, 7:55 a.m.: Stinson vs. Tisdale; McVea Oliver vs. Ross; third flight consolation, 7:50 a.m.: Pirtle vs. Penn; McDonald vs. Spier.

Fourth flight, 7:40 a.m.: Ford, Jr. vs. McCain; Andrews vs. Bobby Cole; fourth flight consolation, 7:35 a.m.: Mattison vs. P. Cole; Gaston vs. Ben Downing, Jr.

Fifth flight, 7:40 a.m.: K. Holt vs. N. W. McClure; Harter vs. Arai; fifth flight consolation, 7:45 a.m.: Harter vs. Winberry; Ewing vs. Clarkson.

Sixth flight, 8:35 a.m.: Holt vs. Roberts; Tyler vs. Taylor; sixth flight consolation, 8:40 a.m.: Bailey vs. Snyder; Frost vs. Guice.

Seventh flight, 8:45 a.m.: Oliver vs. Jordan; Cason vs. Rhodes; seventh flight consolation, Guerrero vs. Florshelm; White vs. Rainwater.

Eighth flight, 8:35 a.m.: Young vs. Napp; Womack vs. Penn; eighth flight consolation, 9:00 a.m.: Ludlum vs. C. Jordan; Dyer vs. McCloud.

Ninth flight, 9:05 a.m.: Crittenden vs. J. R. Ludlum; Goodwin vs. Blaylock; ninth flight consolation, 9:10 a.m.: Flaxman vs. McMeans; Welden vs. Hendricks.

Tenth flight, 9:15 a.m.: Woods vs. Montgomery; Moore vs. Bandi; tenth flight consolation, 9:20 a.m.: Madison vs. Seals; White vs. B. McDonald.

Eleventh flight, 9:25 a.m.: Lucas vs. Miller; Mikall vs. Haffer; eleventh flight consolation, 9:30 a.m.: McConaghy vs. Marqan; Moore vs. Winn.

Twelfth flight, 9:35 a.m.: Coats vs. Poimbeuf; Fitzpatrick vs. Merkin; twelfth flight consolation, 9:40 a.m.: Pagan vs. Dorman; Morris vs. Clark.

Thirteenth flight, 9:45 a.m.: Cannon vs. Smith; Orr vs. Gibson; thirteenth flight consolation, Sholars vs. Humphries.

BASTROP, July 4.—(Special)—Bastrop carried away the honors in the opening feature of the sixth annual Kraft Paper Golf tournament here Friday when Clifford Anthony, professional of the Morehouse Country club and James Tisdale, Jr., local amateur, won the pro-amateur golf match with a score of 70. Twelve professional and amateur teams were entered in the match which brought out a large gallery despite the inclement weather.

BEARDED TERROR, WILD OKLAHOMAN IN FEATURE BOUT

Change In Weekly Mat Program Date Made For This Week Only

Promoter Philip Lisotta finally signed for a bout here a wrestler who he believes will take the measure of Ellis Bashara, the Oklahoma badman who has been wreaking havoc with his opponents at Roosevelt stadium.

The wrestler signed especially for Bashara, and the fans, who have been clamoring for some matman capable of manhandling Bashara, is none other than Leo the Terror, who appeared in bouts here a year ago.

Leo Promoter Lisotta believes, will defeat Bashara, if that can be done by any wrestler now in the game, that is—by subduing Bashara at his own game, by the meanest roughhouse tactics now prevailing in the wrestling world.

The bout between the two terrors will be held Thursday night because the promoter was unable to bring Leo here for a bout on the regular mat program night, Tuesday. After this week, Promoter Lisotta will resume holding the weekly programs on Tuesday.

Bashara, who has been consistently punishing his opponents in the local stadium with severity, boasted to Promoter Lisotta recently that no wrestler now in the game is capable of beating him in the roughhouse type of mat warfare.

Leo the Terror is the promoter's answer. Bashara made the boast, Lisotta said, after the promoter protested last night about Bashara's behavior.

Carrying the almost unconscious, thoroughly beaten Elitch to his dressing room at the end of their bout, Bashara dropped Elitch on his head in the latter's dressing room.

Since appearing here a year ago, Leo has defeated Dan McConaghy, Jim London, Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Gus Sonnenberg, all former heavy-weight champions.

Savage has been a leading box office attraction over the nation. In his three appearances here last year, he defeated without difficulty Swede Holmberg, Frenchie LaRue and Cowboy Luttrell.

An unorthodox type of wrestling, excepting a bear hug which in itself is a cave man hold, makes Leo a terror in the ring. His wild man terrors, punches and hair pulling, kicking and gouging, coupled with his great strength, make him a dangerous opponent.

The bout will be waged on the basis of the best two out of three falls with a two-hour time limit.

Promoter Lisotta is making arrangements to bring more headline wrestlers here for the semi-final bout.

Pat Reilly, referee of Houston, Tex., will be brought here to referee the main event. Butch Martin, local referee, will be the ring doctor.

step into the ring if it becomes necessary for two referees to enter the fracas.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 4.—(Special)—Discovery carried away the honors in the opening feature of the sixth annual Kraft Paper Golf tournament here Friday when Clifford Anthony, professional of the Morehouse Country club and James Tisdale, Jr., local amateur, won the pro-amateur golf match with a score of 70. KIDNAPPED COFFIN LIDS PROFIT CHINESE THIEVES

CHINKIANG, China, July 4.—(Special)—Lawless persons here are said to be reaping large profits by stealing coffin lids and holding them for ransom.

It is the custom among well-to-do Chinese to buy coffins in anticipation of their death, and store them in special buildings near their ancestral temples.

Owners of the coffins usually pay the ransom because it would cost more to purchase a new lid. If the owners refuse payment, the thieves chop up the covers and sell them for firewood.

Rainbows may mean the approach of either good or bad weather.

YANKS WIN BOTH GAMES OF TWIN BILL WITH NATS

Lazerri And DiMaggio Lead At Bat; Broaca Wins Nightcap

WASHINGTON, July 4.—(AP)—Those Yankee luminaries, Tony Lazerri and Joe DiMaggio, combined with Johnny Broaca to whip Washington twice today, New York winning 4 to 3, and 3 to 0, before a record-breaking crowd of 38,000.

Lazerri, at his best in the clutch, banged out a double with the bases loaded in the fourth inning of the first game to set the League leaders off to an advantage that was never overtaken by the Senators.

The second game saw Broaca turn in perhaps his first pitching performance of the year, shutting out the Senators and limiting them to six hits.

DiMaggio pushed the Yankees out in front in the third inning with a home run that scored Crosetti before him. Doubles by DiMaggio and Gehrig and Selkirk's single scored two more in the sixth while Powell's single drove in another in the eighth.

54 WILL RECEIVE DEGREES AT TECH

Total Of 218 Students Will Have Graduated During Present Year

RUSTON, La., July 4.—(Special)—With 54 students of the summer session being candidates for degrees, the list of those completing graduation requirements during the 1935-36 school year totals 218, Mrs. Ruby B. Pearce, registrar, has announced. The number is far above any previous year's total.

At the recent annual commencement exercises here diplomas were awarded to 184 seniors. The 54 finishing their college work will receive their degrees at the regular commencement program in June, 1937.

The summer candidates for degrees include 20 in the school of arts and sciences, 27 in the school of education, and 7 in the school of engineering. The list is as follows:

School of Arts and Sciences—Elizabeth Anding, Delhi; Jean Browne, Jonesboro; Hartford Causey, Ruston; Henry Ellis Clark, Ruston; Will H. Cotten, Oak Grove; Glenora Durrett, Arcadia; Fred Baker Greer, Lisbon; Marjorie Hinton, Ruston; John M. Kavanagh, Clay; Herman McKinney, Winnfield; William Ardis Marbury, Ruston; Robert Menefee, Homer; H. Alton Martin, Jonesboro; Hazel Lea Nowell, Mansfield; James Joe Ramsey, Farmerville; William A. Ruple, Haynesville; Ethel Turner, Ruston; Virginia Trussell, Simsboro; Mildred Williams, Arcadia, and Clyde Thurmon, Ruston.

School of Education—Walter Clayton Beeson, West Monroe; Gussie Mae Beard, Ruston; Nancy Jane Brett, Ruston; Nettie Jones Bridger, Ruston; James M. Britt, Hico; Virginia Cole, Ruston; Robbie Crane, Ruston; Mabel Durrett, Arcadia; Morelle Emmons, Hodge; Beulah Moore Goss, Breaux; Mina Larence Green, Hilly; Elizabeth Hays, Ruston; Myra B. Holstead, Choudrant; Sara James Ruston; Kathryn McClain, Monroe; Mary Ruth Mison, Choudrant; Ruth Moon, Antioch; Grace Pipes, Choudrant; Sara Robinson, Ruston; Melonoe Shirley, DeRidder; Elka Lucy Sikes, Dodson; Laval Franklin Taylor, Downsview; Lowice Teddlie, Winnfield; Ruby Winham, Hosston; Byrnie Patton Treanor, Monroe; and Mary Joe Henry, Choudrant.

School of Engineering—Robert S. Baker, Ruston; Roderick Duchesne, Baskin; Hugh McCormick, Homer; M. G. Ricka, Grand Cane; Charles Spurlin Johnson, Shreveport; Odus C. Tubbs, El Dorado, Ark.; and Henry Otis White, Shreveport.

TO ASSUME DUTIES
JENA, La., July 4.—(Special)—J. H. Bradford, Sr. Jena insurance salesman, will assume his duties Monday as secretary of the LaSalle parish police jury. Mr. Bradford will succeed Phil S. Caharan, Jr., who served in that position for the past 13 years. Mr. Caharan did not offer for reelection at a recent executive meeting and Bradford was elected.

President John Adams, and his son, President John Quincy Adams, both were born at Quincy, Mass., both lived there when elected, and both are buried in that city.

Characters in the play, directed by Mrs. Joe Brown Love of Baton Rouge, will be as follows: Peter, Ray Lyles; Adina, the wife of Peter, Patricia McHugh; Deborah, mother of Adina, Blanche Gibbons; Ucal, Deborah's brother, Meffre Matta; Mary Magdala, Mrs. Joe Brown Love, and Pandira, Rev. Joe Brown Love.

BARBECUE HELD AT L. T. I. HERE

More Than 150 Friends Of Judge Schulze Are Guests At Annual Affair

More than 150 friends of Judge Charles Schulze, superintendent of Louisiana Training Institute, were his guests Saturday noon at the annual Fourth of July barbecue which has become a feature of the life of the institution during Judge Schulze's administration.

Owing to the threatening weather the affair this year was held in the institute's huge dining hall, famed for its mural paintings of Louisiana scenes. Usually the Independence day barbecue is held in the woods half a mile from the main buildings.

Tables, heaped high with barbecued meats, salads, pickles, and pastries, and flanked with innumerable bottles of soft drinks, were surrounded by the throng of guests, who did ample justice to the superintendent's hospitality.

Prior to the dinner, the guests assembled in the institute auditorium, where Brownlow Hastings, son of Rev. L. T. Hastings, delivered an address on "Christian Patriotism." Mr. Hastings, who is a student of Baylor university, training for entrance into the Baptist ministry, emphasized the importance of love, honesty and duty, as the three great foundation stones of an ideal citizenship.

"We can trace a divine hand in shaping the important incidents of human history," he said, "and not less so in the establishment of this nation on the principles of the Declaration of Independence."

At the close of the dinner Judge Schulze personally greeted all the guests, who voiced their pleasure and appreciation of his hospitality.

"Like all the others that have preceded it," he was told, "this was the best Fourth of July barbecue ever held at L. T. I."

MAY RE-OPEN POOL FOR SUMMER SWIMS

Re-opening of the municipal swimming pool opposite Forsyth park on Riverside drive was indicated as a statement issued by R. D. Swayze, commissioner of parks and streets.

The larger portion of the old pool will be made available for swimmers, Mr. Swayze said, if present plans are carried out. Although the protective levee recently constructed on the east side of the pool encroaches upon a section of the natorium, he said, the main portion can be used, and would provide a safe place for children to swim.

Through the cooperation of William Rodriguez, commissioner of public utilities, who has arranged for the installation of water pipes and wiring, Commissioner Swayze stated, the probability of opening the pool for use for the balance of the summer seemed to be virtually established.

Society Spends Quiet Day As Another July Fourth Passes

Cool Days Bring Numerous Events

Local Women To Assist In Getting Members For Roosevelt Nominators Club

Continuing on its romantic way until the very last, the month of June with its wealth of weddings, graduations and conventions bowed itself out of the picture and made room for July and incidentally a most welcome visitor, Jupiter Pluvius, who washed the fetid air as clean as that of a mountain valley. "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow" rose like a grand amen from the throats of city dwellers and farmers as well when the rain came pouring down bringing new life to the rich and poor alike.

So welcome was the rain no one raised his voice in protest when the refreshing drinks at Lily Harrington's garden fete were sipped indoors in places of under gay umbrellas at small tables in the shadowy garden enclosure. The refreshment table, moved in a twinkling from the garden, was the dashingest ever with deep coral colored peonies, a dozen or more, nodding from a flaring Venetian bowl. Lightness of spirit, carefreeness and luxurious indolence took possession of the guests who enjoyed the cool, rain drenched-morning air that swept through the drawing room, dining room and solarium banked with gift flowers.

Independence day, was quietly in Monroe. Uncle Sam in his ripe old age inclines more and more to observe the birthday of his freedom in a sedate, adult-minded way, indulging liberally in the orderly pleasures of life, golfing, touring, fishing, boating and feasting in the greenwood. The impulse to fire off shot-guns at the unoffending zenith and all forms of sudden excitement and elation is being discouraged more and more as the years roll by. Each year we become more and more urbane. Yesterday it was even possible to sleep 'til breakfast time and to enjoy the hours of peace thereafter without fleeing the town. It is nice to note also that the day was not made hideous with screams of ambulance sirens, and happily, hospital staffs were not called upon to administer chloroform and serum.

Formation of the Roosevelt Nominators club brought an animating ripple to the quiet surface of club life last week. All Democratic women will be called upon to enroll and to contribute one dollar. One of the busiest women we saw last week was Mrs. C. C. Thompson, who is lending valuable aid.

The trek to the north woods and "the shining big sea water" is now in earnest. Ida Kaplan and Evelyn Reims are as happy as the proverbial larks these days with their trip to Bermuda occupying their mind and their time too, as they have packed away some smart duds for life on ship board and at the resort hotel where they will while away some golden hours.

Best James is off again this year for Taos, New Mexico, where she can put on canvas tawny adobe houses mellowed with age and paint with lavish hand the pine-clad mountains and lakes, sacred to the Taos Indians. Mrs. James is eager to again set up her easel in the desert sands of New Mexico where she spent the entire summer two years ago. She is most enthusiastic over the prospects of painting the stoical Indians standing on their hill tops at sunset viewing the majestic sweep of the Rio Grande.

Betty Isaacman is cruising in South American waters today. She joined a party in New Orleans for Guatemala on board a steamer of the Great White fleet. She will be one of the most decorative persons on ship board, as she wears her clothes with a certain dash and verve, envied by all women.

Anna Gray and children, Gay and Jimmy, will settle down in the shadow of the Rockies in Manitou for the remainder of the summer. Sunrise on Pike's Peak, visits to the Garden of the Gods and the Cave of the Winds will keep them interested through the summer days ahead.

Dora Anish is radiating happiness these days and no wonder—she is going to spend three weeks with her son, Melvin, traveling with him over his territory in the Bayou Teche country with an occasional night on the gulf coast. Wherever he goes she will go and his people will be her people for three blissful weeks. This particular mother and son are most companionable and quite happy in each other's company.

Friends of Lottie Clute shook their heads in alarm when she left Detroit to come south last week. Northern people who have never visited the south picture it as a land infested with mosquitoes and malaria, blistering heat and sleepy bayous filled with stagnant water. Mrs. Clute had to come south to get cooled off. Ever since arriving in Monroe she has been sleeping under cover and enjoying cool, rain-drenched days. It so happened that she drove into the city with the rain that came down like manna from heaven.

Rosina Weingarden is another Detroit who prefers Dixie in the summer time. So happy was she to come back home this summer she was inspired to write verse after verse as she motored with her husband and daughter along the highway leading to Monroe. The verses in question are really beautiful, we have been told. Hope we can get them for publication.

Miss Wilma Marie Howe, Mrs. John Hill and Mrs. Laura Mayes have returned from a visit in Dallas and Fort Worth.

Miss Carrie Katherine Perce is in the St. Francis sanitarium where she underwent an appendectomy Tuesday morning. Friends who desire to call will find her in room 233.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Washburn motored to Dallas, Texas, for a week-end visit.

Scholarship Granted

The thousand dollar peace scholarship for study in Geneva, awarded annually by the American Federation of Women's club in Europe, has been granted this year to Mrs. Dwight Ingalls Chapman of Somerville, Mass. Mrs. Chapman holds an A. B. degree from Boston university, a Phi Beta Kappa membership, and is the recipient of the Fletcher scholarship in law and diplomacy at Tufts college, Medford, Mass. She is now in Geneva, and will be abroad for six months preparing articles to be published in the United States next winter. Mrs. Chapman was a speaker at the annual convention of the American Federation of Women's clubs in Europe, held in Copenhagen in May. The scholarship is given by Mrs. Clarence Gage of London.

In this country, the combined loan funds of the various state federations, and the capital value of the educational funds loaned and given as gifts by the women's clubs amounts to about $2,000,000, according to Mrs. George Norman Campbell of Kalama, Wash., chairman of scholarships, fellowships and state loan funds in the General Federation of Women's clubs.

"Oregon has helped the largest number of students," Mrs. Campbell states. "Kansas has the largest fund administered by a state federation. Alabama has the oldest state fund, while Illinois has the oldest individual club fund. The broadest program for scholarship work is found in Georgia."

"An interesting development is the extension of aid to boys as well as girls; Idaho has helped more boys than has any other state. There is also a tendency to turn over a share in the administration of these funds to certain colleges as being better able to select the most deserving students among the upper classes."

Use of the funds to encourage women in taking graduate work is also increasing. Mississippi established in 1923 the Hebron memorial scholarship which has enabled many young women to take master's degrees at Columbia and Chicago. New Jersey has established a federal fellowship for advanced study for women who have already completed one year of graduate work.

Ohio maintains a Pan-American fellowship through which five young women from Latin American countries have been able to study in Ohio.

"The Pan-American fellowship of the general federation enables a Latin American woman to study in some country of social service, to study in this country. The candidates are selected through the Pan-American union. Four women have been recipients of this fellowship since 1930, and it has been awarded recently to a fifth, Miss Yolanda Bedregal of Bolivia. The general federation has 33 clubs in Latin America."

"Eligible girls have received loans from the medical loan scholarship, which was established to aid women in preparing themselves for service in the medical profession. The first recipient is now a doctor serving in the public health work of one of our city schools. The second recipient is a missionary in China, and the third is in the Philippines. Islands. The later borrowers are still preparing for their professional careers."

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hawkins and daughter, Louise, and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hood motored to Dallas for the week-end to attend the Texas centennial.

Garden Party Given

Prominent among the social affairs of the past week was the garden party given by the Women's Missionary society of the First Methodist church at the home of Mrs. Fred Coon. This lovely affair was sponsored by the young women's circles of the organization and commemorated 50 years of home missions in America. The leaders of these circles, Mrs. Earl Hitt, Mrs. Douglas Page, Mrs. V. S. Garrett, Mrs. A. R. Holloway, president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. W. C. Scott welcomed the guests.

Several beautiful instrumental numbers were rendered by Mrs. C. G. Bennett during the evening, and Miss Eloise Temple, accompanied by Mrs. Julius Kugler, pianist, and Mrs. Clyde Sanders, violinist, contributed several charming vocal numbers. Miss Mildred Johnson entertained with several dramatic readings.

Mrs. Austin Miller introduced Mrs. A. R. Holloway, who spoke glowingly of the work accomplished by members of the missionary society and paid tribute to the members who have been working for the cause since organization. Claiming this honor were Miss Sadie Foster, Mrs. E. C. Gibson and Mrs. J. W. Porter, all of whom were presented with exquisite corsages. Corsages were also presented to Mrs. S. M. Collins, state officer, and to Mrs. Sam Allen and Mrs. Austin Miller, who are departing for their new homes in Delhi. Exceeding regret over their departure was expressed on every hand.

Refreshing fruit frappe was served during the afternoon by Mrs. L. L. Langford, Mrs. Clyde Warner and Mrs. Carl Stillman.

Miss Joyce Thompson, also a graduate of the state normal, is working toward her degree at the normal this summer. Both young ladies are spending the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Thompson.

Butitta-Messina

A wedding claiming the attention and interest of friends was that of Miss Josephine Messina and Mr. V. J. Butitta at St. Matthew's church on the twenty-eighth of June. The ceremony was impressively performed in the presence of intimate friends and members of the two families.

While the guests were being seated Gounod's "Ave Maria" was beautifully rendered by Miss Annette Butitta, accompanied by Mr. Don Breitenmeyer, organist.

Tall cathedral tapers gleamed on the altar in the midst of beautiful pastel shaded flowers.

Miss Nick Bruscatto, sister of the bride, acted as matron of honor. She wore a lovely model of orchid organza with a sash of velvet and carried an arm bouquet of orchid and pink snapdragons.

The three bridesmaids, Misses Mildred Butitta, Sarah Messina and Marie Butitta, wore lovely frocks of orchid colored mousseline and carried arm bouquets of pink snapdragons.

The flower girls, Mary Ann Cascio and Ann Varino, wore quaint costumes of orchid mousseline and carried colonial bouquets of old-fashioned flowers.

The groomsmen were: Mr. Vincent Sampaunaro, Mr. John Carso and Mr. John Varino.

The ring bearer, Frank Cerniglia, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Cerniglia, wore white linen.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful wedding gown of white princess lace with long sleeves and rather high neck line. The veil of illusion was caught to the hair with a cap of pearls and fell into a train that hung beyond the hem of the skirt. She carried a beautiful arm bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Butitta left for a honeymoon in Port Arthur, Texas. Upon their return, they will be at home on Layton avenue.

Guests in the city for the wedding were: Miss Aline Moore and Mr. W. E. Moore, Jr.

Whitworth-Calvert Charming simplicity characterized the wedding of Miss Virginia Anne Calvert, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Calvert of West Monroe, and Mr. J. B. Whitworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Whitworth of Blytheville, Ark., at the Calvert residence, Thursday evening, July the second, at seven-thirty o'clock.

The ceremony, with Reverend Ernest Holloway, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating, was performed in the midst of beautiful flowers and flaming cathedral tapers placed in the background of the reception suite. The vows were spoken before an improvised, candlelit altar, banked high with Shasta daisies.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Calvert, who wore a picturesque frock of Baroque pink mousseline, with arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mr. H. C. Whitworth, brother of the bridegroom served as groomsmen. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a distinctive model of Gentian blue lace, with all accessories of the same beautiful shade of blue, and carried an arm bouquet of flesh-colored bride's roses and valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, with Mrs. Calvert extending courtesies in a white mousseline model with corsage of gardenias.

The bride changed her wedding ensemble for a smart tailor of canary yellow corded silk with black accessories and left with Mr. Whitworth for the Ozark mountains, where the honeymoon will be spent. Upon their return they will be at home in Baton Rouge, where Mr. Whitworth is football coach at the state university. He is a graduate of the University of Alabama and a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. Mrs. Whitworth also attended the University of Alabama and Gulf Park college, Gulfport, Miss. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

Guests attending the wedding, in addition to the immediate family, were: Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Whitworth of Blytheville, Ark.; Miss Melba Liner, Miss Judy Thornton, Miss Victoria Steele, Miss Virginia Mitchell, Mrs. Faulkner Hearo, Mrs. Robert Garrison and Miss Grace Lawton.

Appointment Sought Appointment of Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs as a delegate to the all-American conference to be held in Buenos Aires in November is being sought by club women of the United States.

The resolution urging inclusion of a woman in the United States delegation and presenting the name of Mrs. Lawson adopted by the recent convention and meeting of the general federation and sent to President Roosevelt is now being supplemented by letters from women in every state in the union urging Mrs. Lawson's appointment.

"The all-American conference will deal with many questions affecting the welfare of women," says Miss Long, chairman of the department of international relations of the general federation, who is asking Mrs. Lawson to represent the women of her country on this occasion.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, a past president of the general federation, and now vice-chairman of the department of international relations, says: "We are most anxious that President Roosevelt appoint Mrs. Lawson as one of the delegates to the coming peace conference to be held in South America. No organization of women in the country has done more to promote understanding and good feeling between the Americas than the general federation, so we feel that this is a legitimate request."

Al Fresco Affair Mr. and Mrs. Carl McHenry were responsible for a few hours of gaiety enjoyed by members of the younger set in the beautiful garden of their home Saturday night with their niece, Martha Wilton McHenry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil McHenry, and their nephew, Armand McHenry, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. G. McHenry, assisting in the courtesies.

The swimming pool, shaded with giant oaks, was the scene of pleasure during the evening. Later supper was served in the gardens where tables were grouped under the trees. Floodlights illuminated the scene.

Enjoying this al fresco affair were Misses Carolyn Oliver, Barbara McKenzie, Mabel Cole, Mary Eleanor Coverdale, Marguerite McHenry, Doll Hudson, Gloria Frances Major, Carolyn Royce, Jean Terzia, Martha Wilton McHenry, Nelson Abell, Bob Shortwell, Ben Downing, Tommy Wyatt, Billy Wright, Herbert Land, Bobby O'Donnell, Harold Mouk, Jr., J. C. Adams, James Moore, Armand McHenry.

Mrs. Harrington's 'At Home' One Of Chief Events Of Week

Reception Honors 3 Charming Women

More Than 200 Friends Are Present To Meet Mesdames Moore, Liner, Collens

Mrs. A. L. Harrington's "at home" last Thursday offered a charming pause in the day's occupations for friends who responded to the unique invitation giving them an opportunity to meet Mrs. Marnie Bradley Moore, Mrs. James Conway Liner and Mrs. John Collens.

Friends were invited to pause in the garden but the inclemency of the weather altered the plans of the hostess who transformed the lower floor of her home into a colorful garden spot. Beautiful gift flowers were everywhere in evidence, overflowing from tall floor standards, baskets and pottery urns placed at vantage points.

Mrs. Harrington, wearing a white semi-sport frock, introduced her guests of honor. Mrs. Moore wore a white crepe sport model and Mrs. Liner wore a pastel blue sport model. Mrs. Collens a sport model of aquamarine blue.

Mrs. Allan Shobars, Mrs. H. K. Touchstone, Mrs. Bradley Waelder,

Mrs. Arthur Dryburgh, Mrs. J. W. McWilliams, Mrs. Theodore Terzia and Mrs. Morris Haas extended courtesies in the solarium, a restful and cool retreat where Mr. and Mrs. Harrington welcome their friends and spend the greater portion of their time during the torrid days of summer.

Ice fruit juices and other cooling drinks were passed among the guests and were also served in the dining room, where the refreshment table, overlaid with handsome Italian lace and linen cut-work, was adorned with a spray of glorious pink peonies clustered in a Venetian bowl of classic shape. A variety of sandwiches, cheese straws and hors d'oeuvres in silver receptacles were placed along the board for the convenience of the guests. Mrs. Carrie Standifer, Mrs. G. B. Cooley, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Douglas Miles, Miss Jane Terzia and Miss Louise Gray assisted in the dining room.

Two hundred or more guests called during the receiving hours.

Tri-Color Effects In Wool Mark Kiddies' Swim Suits

Swimming suits for youngsters are as smart in detail as those of grown-ups this year. These, made of soft wool, achieve tri-color effects with their trims. The model on the left is yellow wool with a white trim and brown anchor; the suit on the right is light blue with white and navy blue accents.

Swimming Party

Mrs. George Weeks entertained a few members of the younger set with a swimming party at the Carl McHenry pool and luncheon at her home on Riverside, complimentary to Misses Nancy and Margaret Dicks of New Orleans, who are spending a few weeks with their parents at Kalamazoo, summer home of their grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Reilly, near Collinston.

A few joyous hours were spent swimming during the morning and at twelve o'clock luncheon was served in the cool environs of the dining room of the Weeks home. The luncheon table was beautifully appointed with silver and crystal and florally adorned with blossoms in the pastel shades.

Sharing the pleasures with Misses Dicks were Miss Mary Louise Fudickar, Miss Betty Reilly, Misses Sara Zillerie of New Orleans, Miss Marjorie Farmer, Miss Ann Carter, Miss Nancy Shaw and Miss Patsy Dryburgh.

Invitations Posted

The affectionate and sincere interest of friends in this section of the state is centered in the following beautifully engraved invitations.

FHA ACTIVITIES INFLUENCE RATES ON SECURITIES

Idaho Director Sees Insured Administration Type Becoming Standard

BOISE, Idaho.—The Federal Housing Administration's single mortgage system is steadily becoming standard practice throughout Idaho and has been indirectly responsible for a material reduction in interest rates charged by private financial institutions on uninsured home mortgage loans in the opinion of Harry Whittier, Idaho state director for the Federal Housing Administration.

Mr. Whittier based his opinion upon information gathered from officials of building and loan associations whom he met recently at their annual meeting here and from information supplied him by commercial bankers, the state chamber of commerce, and other sources. Mr. Whittier summarized his findings as follows:

Rates Reduced
"When the insured mortgage plan was put into operation in this state in January, 1935," he said, "the average rate of interest on home mortgages was 7.5 per cent. That rate today is materially less. It is the belief of the building and loan associations that the average rate at this time approximates 6.1-2 per cent. All of the building and loan associations now have a 6.1-2 per cent rate when not using the Federal Housing Administration plan, except in cases where it is possible to secure additional interest. Commercial banks are lending upon home properties from 6 per cent to 6.1-2 per cent interest, except their insured mortgage holdings. Life insurance companies and similar lending institutions are loaning from 5 to 6.1-2 per cent. The lending rate from individuals has materially reduced—some loans carrying as low as 5 per cent interest.

Becoming Standard
"The amortized principle of home mortgage lending is becoming standard practice, not only from building and loan associations, but from commercial banks.

"The percentage of the appraised value to be loaned on home properties is increasing with or without insurance.

"Money is available for home mortgages in most every section of the state. A year ago this was not true. The softening of interest rates for all types of loans is noticeable, including mortgage loans.

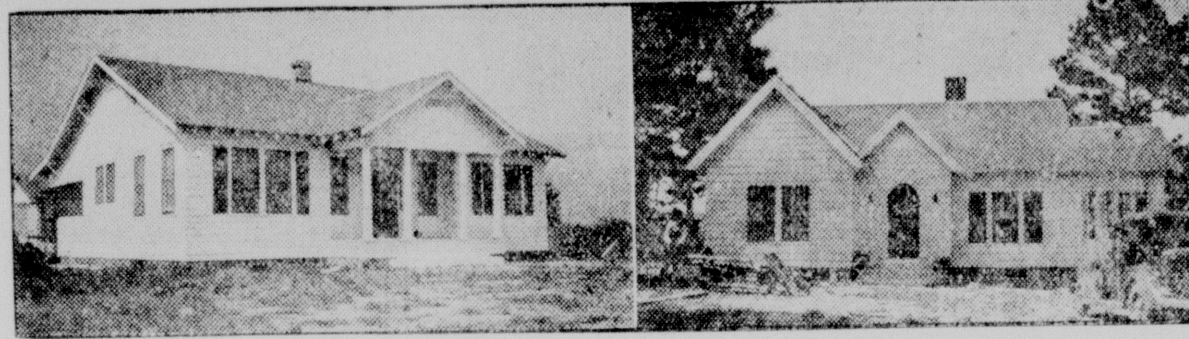

"There are not sufficient loans available to take care of the continued increase of deposits of both building and loan associations and commercial banks. It is my opinion that increased interest rates and charges on insured mortgages would be favorably accepted by the lending institutions, although it would require a readjustment of the given rate of interest of building and loan associations."

SIX-YEAR BEST
Farm-implement trade is the best in six years, according to an Associated Press report in the Washington Star. On the basis of present conditions, the AP continues, the advantage over last year should be maintained. Estimates of 1936 production in this industry range from $400,000,000 to a half billion dollars. The census placed last year's total value of production at $332,000,000.

Use Of Graded Lumber Protects Interests Of Client And Builder

Lumber comes in many different types and grades, and only those familiar with it can distinguish one from another. Some types are best for one kind of work and others for another, but which is which is impossible for the layman to determine.

It is well, therefore, for an architect to stipulate in his specifications just what sort of lumber is to be used for each part of the work and also to state the grade of each species called for. For the protection of the client and for easy identification on the job, it is advisable to call for grade-marked lumber, or lumber that has been classified by one of the lumber associations and has their certificate of grading. Such marking or certificate eliminates all possibilities of disputes and insures the use of the grades specified.

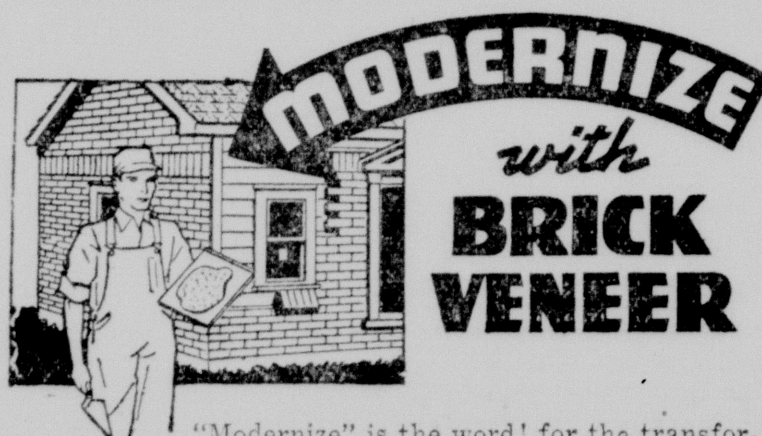

The lumber associations are making a valiant effort to spread the use of grade marking both for their own and for the user's good, and such a movement should be encouraged by everyone interested in building. However, many small mills turn out good, usable lumber although not in a position for one reason or another to have their lumber grade-marked. If it is desired to purchase lumber from such a mill, the trade association interested in the type of lumber specified will grade it and furnish a certificate of its quality upon request. So, insistence upon such marking or certificate will work a hardship only on producers of materials of inferior quality.

The inspection of the federal housing administration when a house is being built under the insured mortgage system includes a check of the lumber being used.

HERE'S HOW
Glendale, Calif., one of the cities in the Golden state where residential building has been at peak level for the past several months, ranks third in the volume of mortgage loans insured by the federal housing administration in California, according to a statement by Ralph A. Lynd, real estate editor of the Glendale News-Press. He quotes A. H. Jones, building department engineer, as saying that the housing administration has been instrumental in bringing about the present building activity throughout California.

ACOUSTICS CUT HOSPITAL NOISE

Problem Met In Schools Met By Acoustical Installations

The reduction of unnecessary noise is a considerable problem in both hospitals and schools, but it can be solved by the application of acoustical treatment of various kinds, on the walls and ceilings of corridors, halls, and rooms.

Modernization of this type is eligible for loans made by private lending institutions operating under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

In hospitals, noise is always a menace to the comfort of patients and trying to the nerves of the staff. Every effort is made to keep down noise at its source, but necessary activities create a certain amount of obnoxious sound which can be eliminated only through acoustical treatment. Often sound-absorbing material is applied to corridors to prevent unavoidable traffic from disturbing the patients' sleep; sometimes it is used to quiet the noises in diet kitchens and dining rooms; and frequently it is installed in wards, in utility rooms, nurseries, examining and waiting rooms.

In every case, the desired result has been attained—the elimination of undesirable noise and the creation of that quiet, restful atmosphere which is so essential to the welfare of the patient.

Objectionable noise has also been banished from hundreds of schools, with the result that benefits of incalculable value have been received by pupils and teachers alike. Ideal studying conditions have been established in typewriting and study rooms; quiet has replaced clatter in cafeterias; disturbing noise originating in corridors, gymnasiums, swimming pools, and manual training rooms have been effectively "blotted up" through the application of sound-absorbing materials.

The Mammoth Cave, of Kentucky, was discovered by accident in 1809, when a bear he had wounded led a hunter named Hutchings to its lair, an entrance to the cave.

TWO NEW LARGE SCALE PROJECTS INSURED BY FHA

Washington, D. C., And Westchester, N. Y., Sites Of Property

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Plans for the insuring of mortgages on two new large-scale housing projects, one in metropolitan Washington and the other in Westchester County, N. Y., have been announced by Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald. The cost of the two projects is estimated at $2,792,340. The RFC Mortgage Co., has agreed to finance the mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

The Washington project, to be known as Hillside Gardens, is located just over the District line in Silver Spring, Md., and provides for two and three-story semidetached structures housing 178 families, and garages for 28 cars. The Chester Crest Apartments, in the Fleetwood section of Mount Vernon, Westchester County, N. Y., calls for two groups of five-story elevator buildings, providing 279 units, ranging from two to four and one-half rooms each.

A 10-acre tract comprises the site of Hillside Gardens, about 20 per cent of which will be used in the building of homes and garages. Lawns, individual gardens, playgrounds, and wooded park areas will cover the remaining 80 per cent. All buildings will be set back at least 60 feet from the boundary streets, and every apartment has been planned with a view to providing a maximum of cross-ventilation and privacy. Blair Management Corporation is the sponsor of the Washington project. The total cost is estimated at $1,100,000.

Chester Crest Apartments are to be constructed on a site fronting on Gramatan avenue and Cross County Parkway in Mount Vernon. They will cover about 31-2 acres of land which has been held for over 50 years by the New York Christian Home for Intemperate Men. The buildings will cover about 34 per cent of the land, with the remaining space suitably landscaped.

The sponsor of the project is the Lockrell Holding Co. The total cost is estimated at $1,602,340.

NEWSPAPER BACKS BUILDING OF HOME

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—A model home is to be constructed by the Binghamton Press, for sale under the insured mortgage system of the federal housing administration. The house will be a replica of one featured recently in a full-page advertisement in the paper and will be known as Skiplan Home.

The house will be an English cottage type, designed by Dave Jones and will be built by Bert Westbrook, realtor and federal housing fee evaluator, on property owned by the Workers Trust Co. The house will have six rooms with garage attached and will sell for about $6,000.

RECORD MONTH
The Automobile Manufacturers' association reports that April's shipment of members at 388,165 cars and trucks were the highest for any month since May 1929, according to an Associated Press dispatch in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Factory shipments for the first four months of this year, the association reported, amounted to 1,212,242 units, a gain of 20 per cent over the corresponding period of last year and the highest for that period since 1929.

LITTLE EFFORT NEEDED TO MAKE NICE BASEMENT

Bright Colors Can Change The Whole Aspect To One Of Cheerfulness

A bright, cheerful basement from a dark, dismal cellar is the magic performed by a good coat of cement paint in the proper shades. This may be done under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Lack of light necessitates the use, in most basements, of colors with light-reflecting qualities. Walls may be painted attractive shades of warm ivory, cream, buff, yellow, or orange. Pale green or blue and pearl gray, although not warm colors, are possible selections, since they are not too dark to reflect light. Bright touches may be applied to details, such as shelves, to enliven a basement painted in green, blue, or gray.

The floors should be very dark, as is the case everywhere. Any dark color which will look well with the proposed shade of the walls may be used. Black, gray, brown, green, and brick red are all suitable for basement floors. If the floor color is extended up the wall for eight or ten inches, a pleasing baseboard effect will be attained.

The basement is one of the very few places where it is permissible to paint the ceiling a dark color. This, however, should be done only if the ceiling is very high, in which case a dark shade will make the ceiling appear lower. If the ceiling is not very high, the usual ceiling rule applies, which requires that ceilings be painted a very pale shade of whatever color blends best with the walls. The lighter the shade, the better, as long as it is not dead white.

The presence of moisture and efflorescence in basements necessitates the use of a special paint. Ordinary paints will peel, powder, or flake when applied to masonry. A good cement paint or a waterproof porch and deck paint will penetrate and seal the pores, helping to stop the passage of moisture. A durable and attractive finish will result which any home owner may well be proud of for years to come.

Campaign Under Way To Further Pride In Homes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The twenty-third annual Nation-wide Clean-Up and Paint-Up campaign is in progress. This is a strictly civic and educational movement designed to make people more conscious of the fact that a clean home is a healthier, happier, and more comfortable place in which to live and that a clean city is much to be desired by every worthwhile citizen.

Homes and property may be painted, repaired, or improved under the terms of the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration. The campaign is being sponsored by the National Clean-Up and Paint-Up Bureau, with headquarters at Washington, D. C.

SCHOOLS OF N. Y. OFFER COURSE IN HOME OWNERSHIP

Course Designed By FHA To Give Practical Knowledge Of Problem

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The "Arithmetic Home Ownership Project" is being offered as a fifth-year course at the Technical High school here, following the interest shown by the students this spring in planning a model home. This course was planned at the local office of the federal housing administration and includes the drawing up of plans and specifications for homes in a price range of $3,000 to $5,500. It is designed to give students a practical knowledge of the theory of home construction.

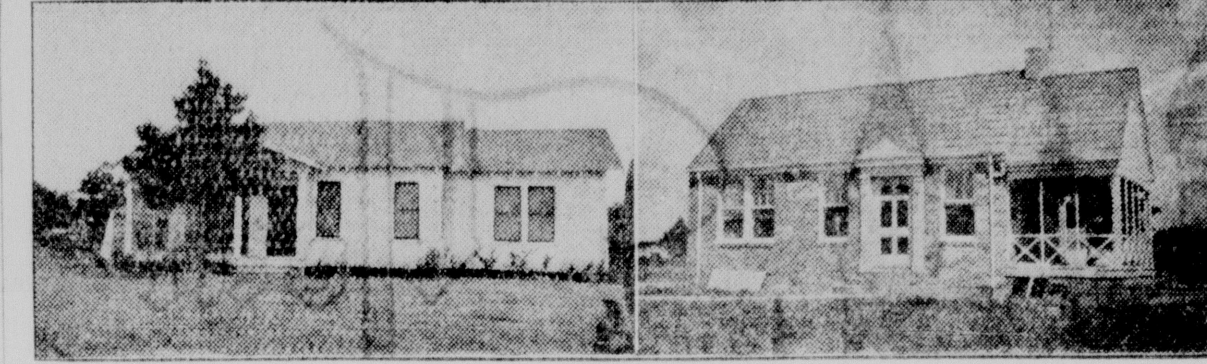

Eight special students, together with the entire senior class, are registered for next year's course, calling for preliminary drawings, drafting of blueprints, and the making of a model scaled to one-quarter inch to a foot. Plumbing, electrical, architectural, mathematical, structural steel, photographic and interior decorating details will be worked out by the students.

In the trial course given at the school this spring, under the direction of Principal Richard D. Dry, a home was designed of fireproof construction, with insulated walls, in modern design. The house was priced at approximately $10,000.

School authorities in neighboring districts have announced that they will include the project in next semester's curriculum.

BUSINESS GAINS

The monthly statistical summary of the Standard Statistics Co. indicates that business activity as a whole probably will end the first half of the year with a composite gain of approximately 15 per cent over the first half of 1935, according to a report in the Washington Post. The report cites a 10 per cent gain for the first quarter; it will approach 18 per cent. May's production estimate, the report states, indicates a 20 per cent gain over the same months of 1935.

BUILDING ACTIVITY HELP TO INDUSTRY

Increase In Home Construction Steps Up Copper Products

NEW YORK, N. Y.—"With the long-awaited and hoped-for building activity now inaugurated, the sound of hammer and saw can be heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the gulf," said Bertram B. Caddie, secretary of the Copper and Brass Research association of New York, in a recent statement.

"Present indications are that the tonnage of copper and its many alloys consumed by the building industry will be far greater during 1936 than any year since 1929. All records for the manufacture and sale of copper tubing with solder fittings for water lines will unquestionably be broken. Manufacturers of products using copper and its alloys are also increasing their output because of increased public buying. This is resulting in heavy sales of copper and its alloys in many different forms. Next to the electrical, the automobile industry is the largest consumer of copper. This industry continues to be in the market for large tonnages. Next comes the building field. If a quarter of a million of the million housing units which this country requires are built this year, the use of copper and its alloys will be far greater than was anticipated at the beginning of 1936."

The easternmost point of the United States is West Quoddy Head, near Eastport, Me. The westernmost point is Cape Alva, Wash.

Thought Required In Planning Sleeping Porch For Livability

There is no doubt that a sleeping porch, in many parts of the country, is a delightful feature as far as comfort and livability are concerned; but there is also no doubt that, architecturally, most of them are unfortunate, to say the least.

To project a two-story porch from the end of a Cape Cod cottage or an Italian villa is usually fatal to esthetic values, but such a pleasant and useful adjunct should not be sacrificed on the altar of architectural purity. By building enough solid masses in the walls to give it the look of a room, rather than a porch, it may appear as an extension.

Such a subterfuge is hardly honest architecture, however, and with the scorn of such deceptions that modern designers have showered upon the old school those who still prefer the established forms are more sensitive to them and less willing to take that easy path. However, there are ways in which such a porch can be included without resorting to the common practice of attaching a bird cage on stilts to the side of the house and without disguising its true function. A recessed porch with wide opening does not spoil the contours of the

HOUSING MANUAL IN 2ND PRINTING

Describes Technique In Gauging Mortgage Risk Through FHA Plan

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The second printing of the federal housing administration's underwriting manual has just been completed, supplying details of the technique utilized in measuring the degree of risk in mortgages eligible for insurance under the insured mortgage system.

The process of thoroughly analyzing the factors of mortgage risk undertaken in the making of a mortgage loan, known as the mortgage risk rating system, is given exhaustively in the manual. It discusses in detail such pertinent subjects as:

(1) The principal of the mortgage cannot exceed 80 per cent of the appraised value established by the federal housing administration. (2) The mortgage must be completely amortized by monthly payments on the principal. (3) The mortgage must not have a maturity date in excess of 20 years. (4) The monthly payments may not be in excess of the mortgagor's (borrower's) reasonable ability to pay. (5) The project with respect to which the mortgage is executed must be economically sound.

It is in regard to the economic soundness of a mortgage that the risk-rating system comes into prominent play. The manual also discusses the relationship of a high type of property standards to qualification for mortgage insurance. Copies of the manual are available to financial institutions at the federal housing administration, Washington, D. C.

The parents of Charles Sidney Chaplin both were well known English stage performers.

Representatives of local businesses call at your home to assist you

Under the law sustained by the highest court in the land, "Man's House (or home) Is His Castle." He has dominion therein—supreme control; and the law gives him the right to preserve it's sancity and to protect it.

Your Home is Your Castle

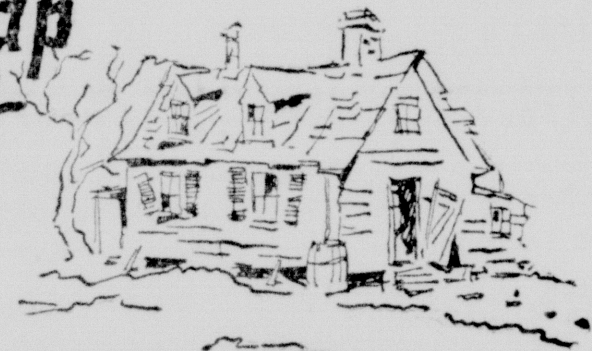

Opportunity Often Knocks At Your Door... BUT—

Be sure he represents reliable concerns before making any cash payments or signing any orders for future shipment of merchandise without knowing what you are going to receive.

Many business houses of your community have legitimate representatives calling at your door to render you a real service and it is not the purpose of this ad to keep you from giving them a hearing. However, we do caution you to endeavor thoroughly to know just what you are buying before you close the deal and put up cash.

Consider this fact: Your merchants are instrumental in increasing the value of your home therefore they deserve your support.

Don't let Cheap Paint make it a Shanty!

Your home and the property which you have charge of are worthy of your protection. What a pity to let cheap direct sold paint spoil your property. The paint sold to you by agents of unknown direct selling concerns will quickly crack and scale away in spots not only ruining the appearance of your property but exposing it to all kinds of weather. Buy your paint from merchants who stand back of it's guarantee—not from direct selling agents who are here today and gone tomorrow.

YOUR CHIEF OF POLICE WARNS

Beware of the man who calls at your home and attempts to sell you some contraption or other to reduce your light or gas bill.

Usually he will want to install some gadget on your meter which he says will let the current or gas pass through the meter without registering. These gadgets do not work and again tampering with your meters is not only contrary to law but also very dangerous.

The police Department would appreciate your calling them should you be approached by anyone attempting to sell you anything of this nature.

Assure yourself that the stranger at your door represents a reliable concern before admitting into your home, representatives of reliable concerns are furnished with proper credentials. If in doubt call some responsible person.

IT PAYS TO BE CAREFUL

The skeptic usually comes out at the big end of the horn—because he is careful and wants to know what it is all about. He does not fall for the trickery and beautiful sales talks made by peddlers and agents. He buys his merchandise from concerns and representatives he knows are reliable.

WHO IS KNOCKING AT YOUR DOOR?

Perhaps it is a representative of your department store, furniture store or utility company who has called to be of some service to you. Your merchants have organized this service to help you with the many home problems.

If it is one of the Itinerant Peddlers or Direct Selling Agents turn a deaf ear. They are there to persist in their arguments to sell you—to worry you into buying something that you do not want—to take up your time. Turn them from your door and soon the word will pass along that your home is not a fertile field for peddlers and direct selling agents.

KNOW FROM WHOM YOU BUY YOUR HOME APPLIANCES

The home appliances sold by your merchants or their representatives are appliances that have proven through tests and experimentations to be not only safe but practical. These appliances are tested for the amount of current or gas consumed and are guaranteed by your merchants. Don't be fooled into purchasing from peddlers or agents those appliances, electric globes and other merchandise which seem to be cheaper—they are usually unsafe for use in your home and will prove very expensive in their operation. Again there is no one who can repair them under the guarantee, should they need repairs, for the peddler has gone.

DUNGEON OF DEATH

ROARING FRIGHTFULLY, LETHOR THE KILLER LION CHARGED HIS VICTIM IN THE UNDERGROUND DUNGEON OF DEATH.

WITH LITTLE SPACE TO MAN-EUVER, TARZAN DREW HIS KNIFE, WHICH HAD BEEN CONCEALED IN HIS LOINCLOTH.

FROM HIS THROAT BURST A FIERCE GROWL, INSPIRED PARTLY BY BLUFF, PARTLY BY THE BEAST INSTINCTS OF THE APE-MAN

THEN FROM THE ROOM ABOVE CAME AGAIN THAT HARSH COMMAND: "LETHOR! KILL!"

AND THE BEAST RESUMED ITS SAVAGE CHARGE.

THE THUNDEROUS ROARS WERE MUSIC TO JIM GORREY'S EARS, FOR THEY INDICATED THE END OF TARZAN.

BUT TARZAN SIDESTEPED THE CHARGE, AND WHIRLED TO LEAP AT HIS ANTAGONIST.

WHEN HE TURNED, HOWEVER HIS FOOT SLIPPED ON THE DAMP PAVEMENT OF THE DUNGEON.

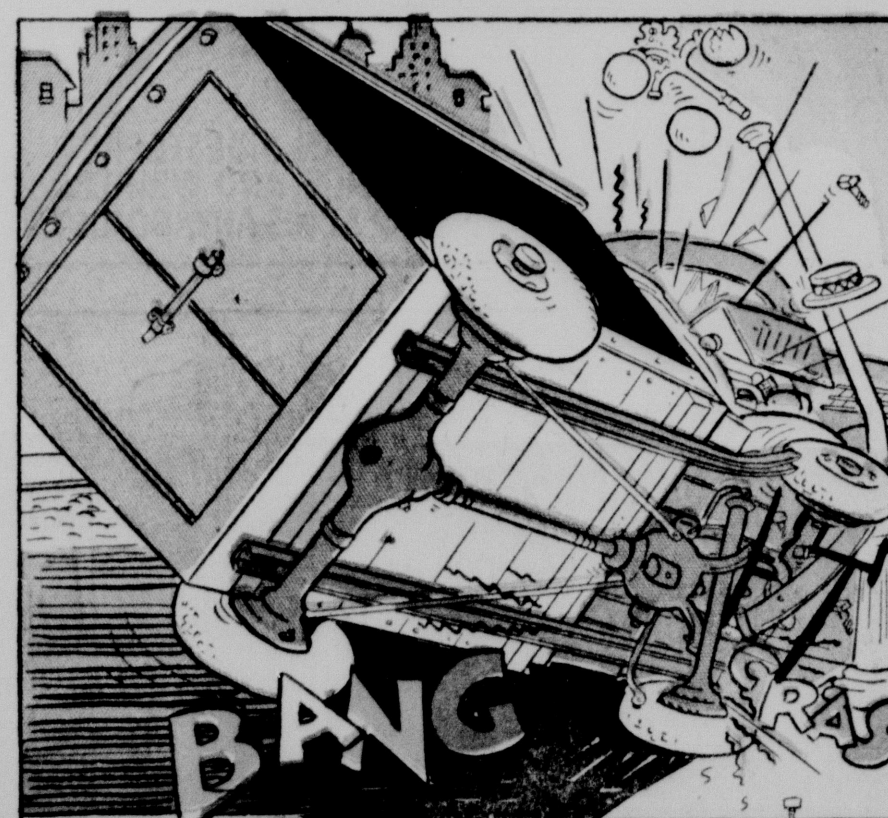

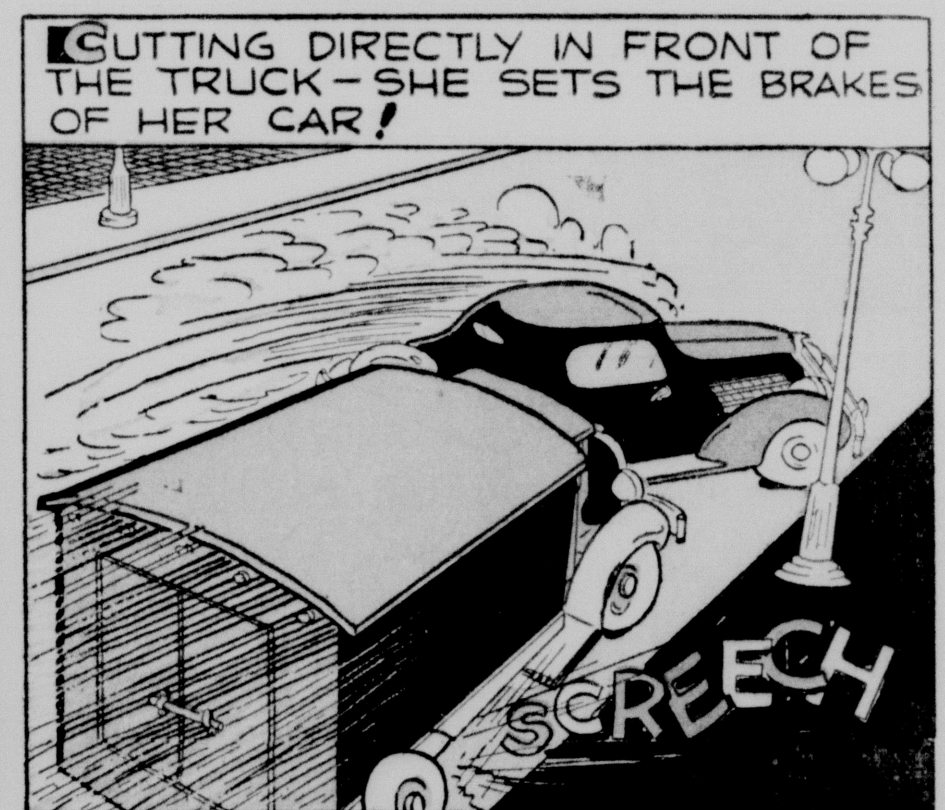

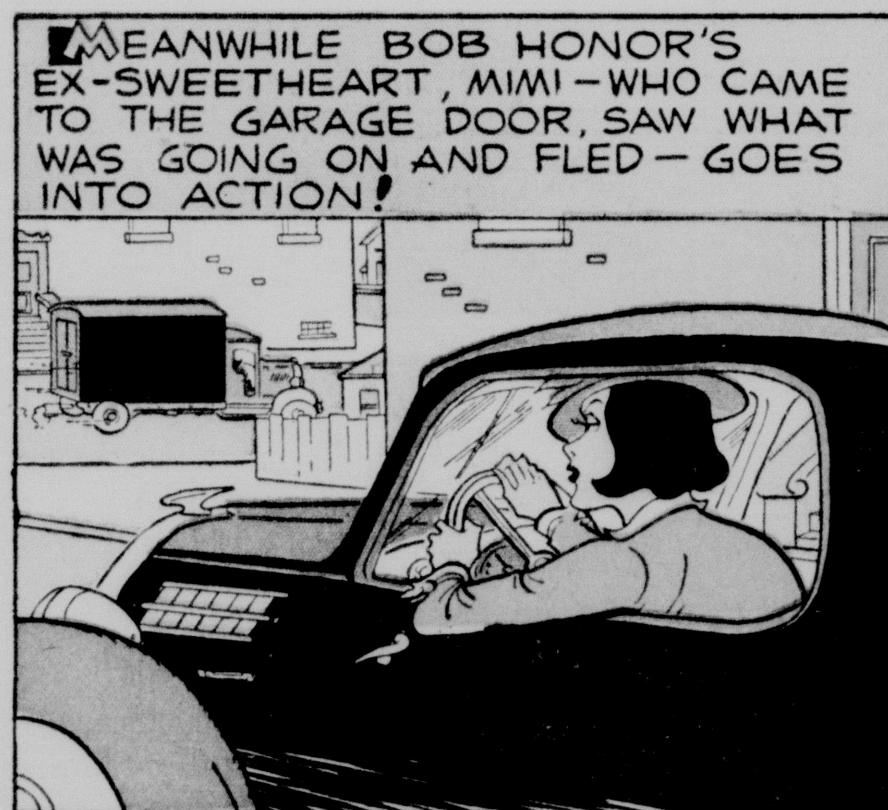

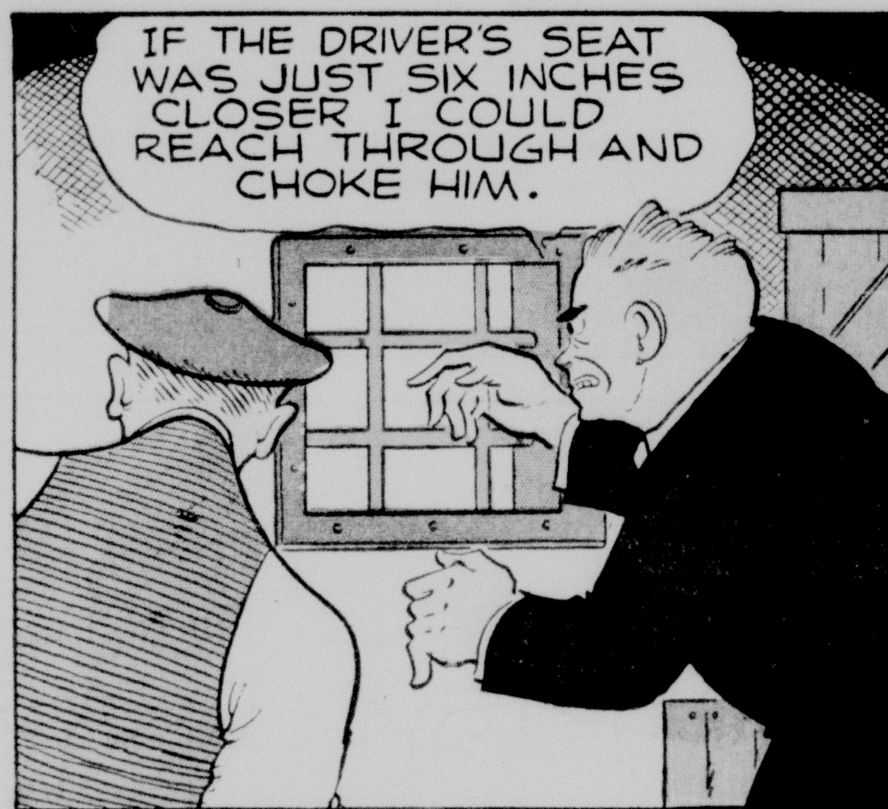

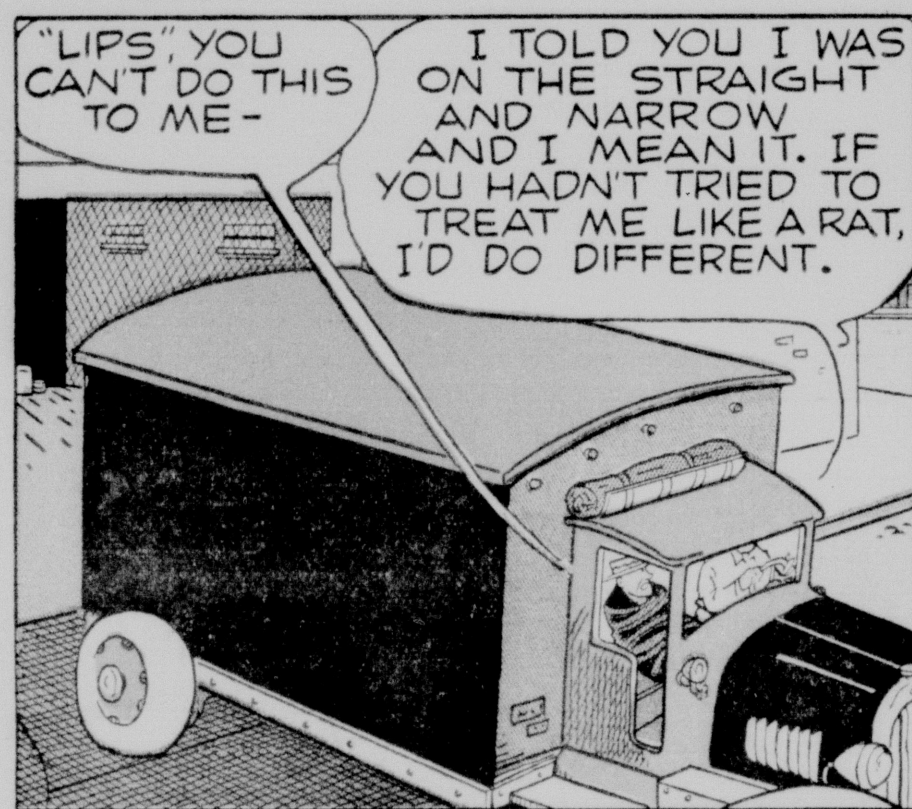

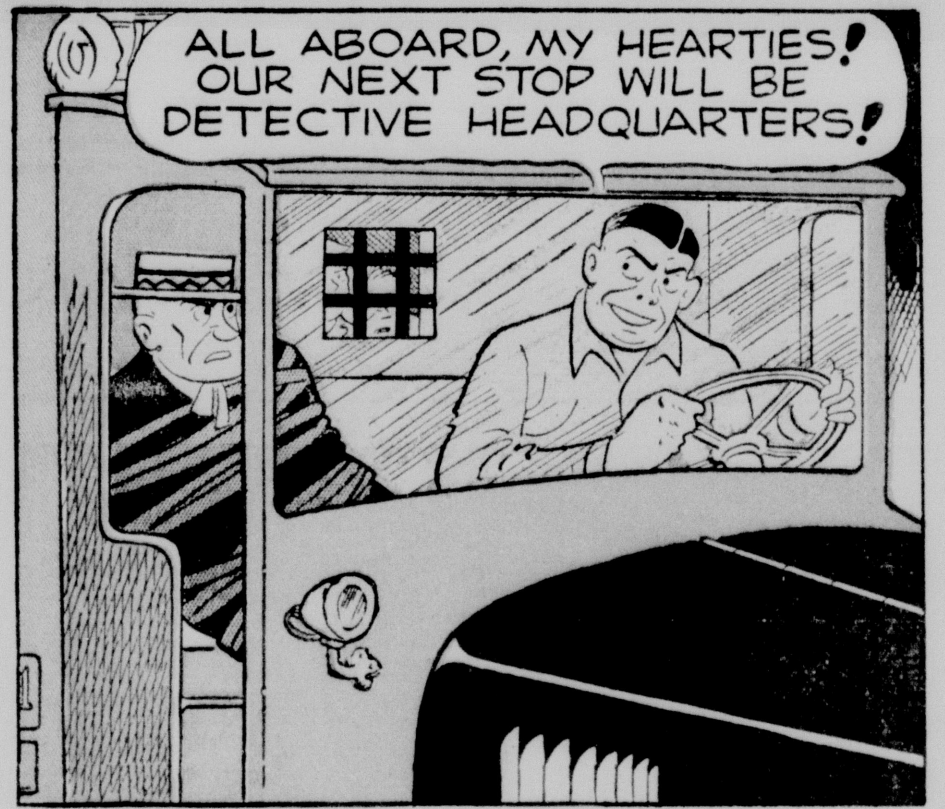

AND AS HE WENT DOWN, LETHOR THE KILLER SPRANG UPON HIM!

ABOVE THE MULTITUDE WAITED BREATHLESSLY. WHEN FIVE MINUTES HAD PASSED, AND NO FURTHER SOUND CAME FROM THE DUNGEON.....

.... KING DALKON PRONOUNCED SOLEMNLY: "IN SILENCE, LETHOR DEVOURS HIS VICTIM. EXECUTION IS DONE!"

THAT KID'S SO STUCK UP I BET HE WON'T EVEN SPEAK TO HISSELF.

WELL, AFTER ALL, HE WAS BORN WITH A SILVER SPOON IN HIS MOUTH— HIS OLD MAN IS P.G. GOLDBOND, OF THE GOLDBOND MILLIONS.

OKAY.

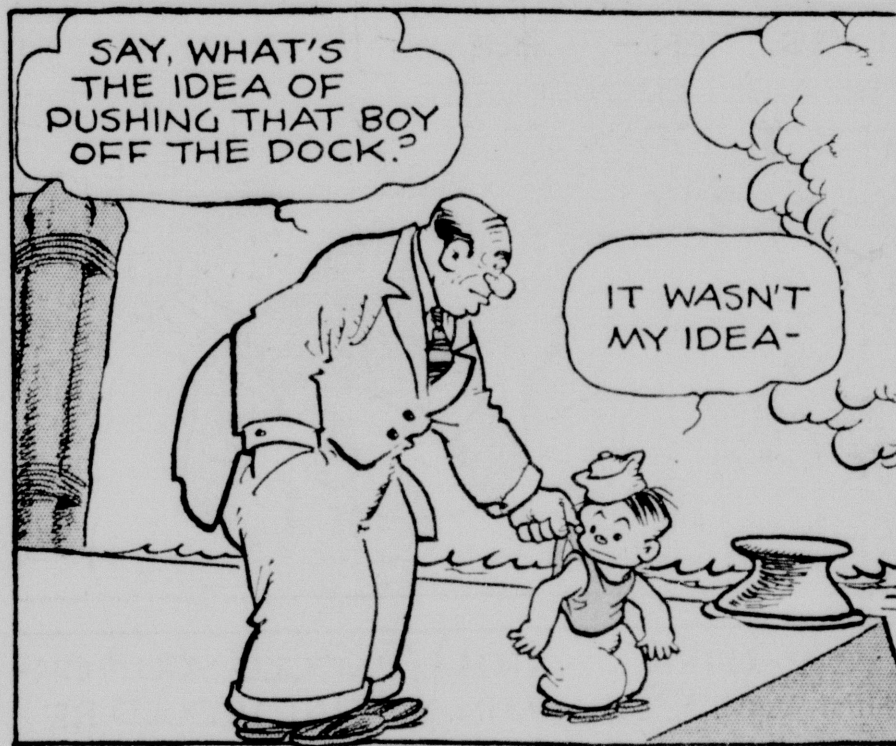

SPLOP!

ONE SIDE, EVERYBODY! ONESIDE! I WILL SAVE THE CHILD!

SAY, WHAT'S THE IDEA OF PUSHING THAT BOY OFF THE DOCK?

IT WASN'T MY IDEA—

YOU SEE THE KID BELONGS TO A GUY BY TH' NAME OF GOLDBOND WHO'S WORTH A LOTTA BUCKS— SO MY UNCLE WILLIE FIGURES HIS OLD MAN WILL DO SOMETHIN' HANDSOME FOR HIM FOR FISHIN' HIS KID OUTTA TH' BIG DRINK.

I SEE.

AND THE BUM IN THE CHECKED PANTS IS YOUR UNCLE WILLIE?

YEH.

OW! CUT THAT OUT

WELL, GET AWAY FROM ME I CAN SWIM!

SO YOU LOST YOUR WALLET WHILE SAVING MY SON, EH?

YES SIR, EVERY CENT I HAD IN THE WORLD— TSK TSK TSK—

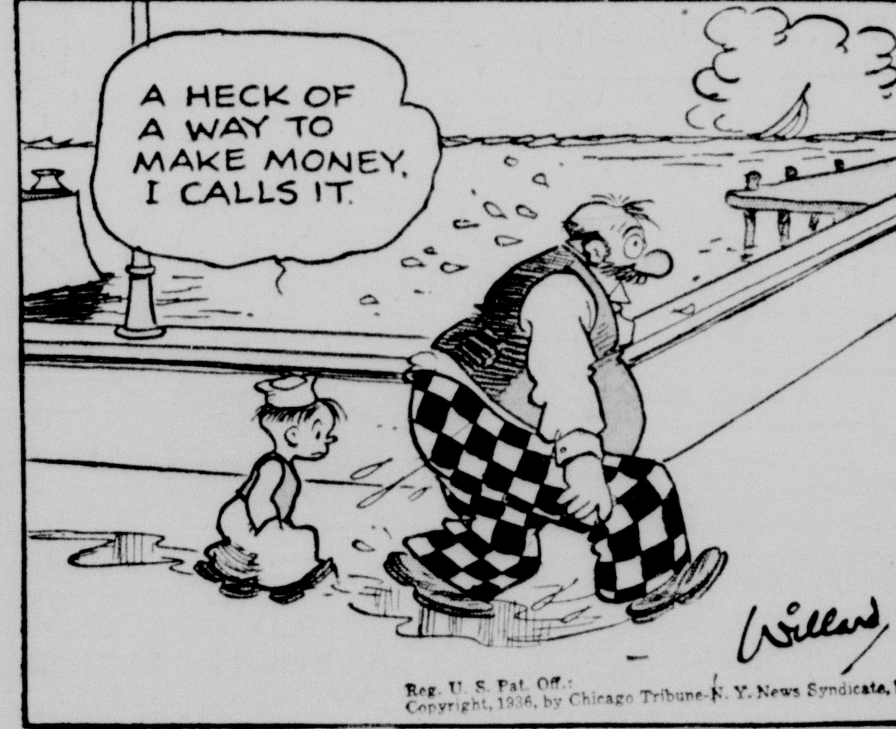

GOOD GOSH! IS THAT YOUR OLD MAN?

WELL, GO LOOK FOR IT!

The

© 1936 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

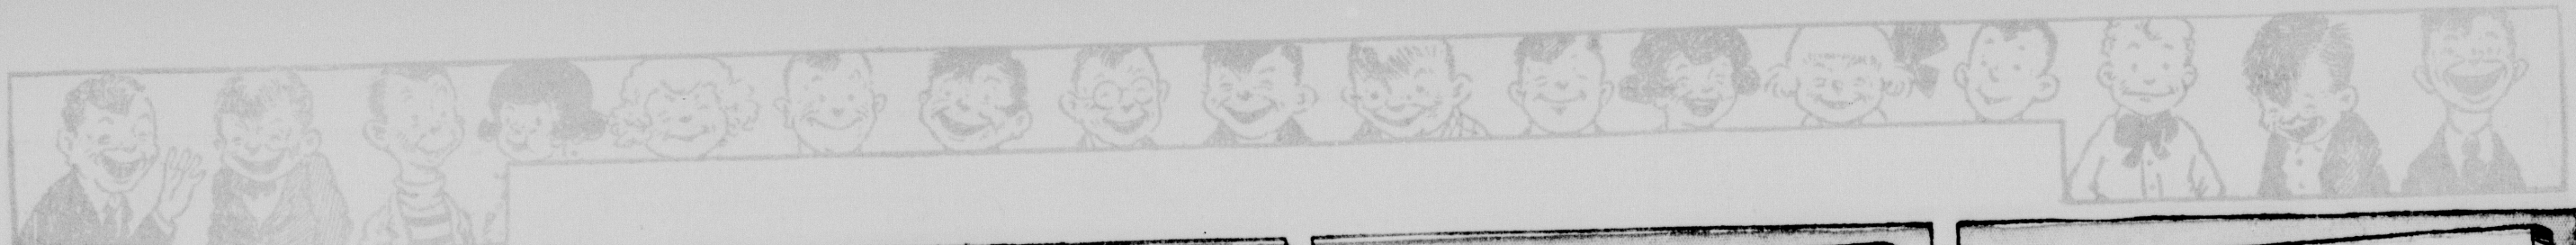

MARTIN, proud Roman cavalryman in Gaul, was riding with fellow officers through Amiens, one cold winter day in the fourth century. Over their armor, their heavy white cloaks glistened in the sun.

Suddenly a shivering beggar in rags stood before them. The officers laughed and rode on. But Martin took off his cloak, cleaved it with his sword and gave half to the beggar.

That night, Jesus appeared before the cavalier, wearing the same half-cloak which had been given to the beggar. Martin was deeply impressed. He became a Christian, left the army and soon ruled as Bishop of Tours. He worked great miracles and converted many heathens. Today, he is patron saint of France, of cavalymen, tailors, drinking festivals and reformed drunkards.
